NOTES ON NEWS OF THE DAY.

THOSE who were caught mangling the bodies of the dead at Johnstown and pilfering their jewelry and clothing were Hungarians. Our Congress has legislated the Chinese out, but no Chinaman could have perpetrated such ghoulish deeds. The Hungarian had better be told to go.

FIFTEEN THOUSAND strangers were in Johnstown yesterday to see the ruins. They became as hungry as the survivors of the wrecked homes themselves, and there was nothing to feed them. The Johnstown authorities have sent out appeals to strangers to keep away. They should send their money now, but postpone their visits.

YESTERDAY 2,095 European immigrants landed at Castle Garden. The United States has not room for such an influx, neither has it any use for the cast-off people of the old world cities. Unless something is done to restrict immigration and especially to assort our immigrants, the question will be taken up in politics and speedily absorb all other issues.

EVERYBODY in New York is pleased with Theodore Rosevelt's determination to enforce the civil service law. Reformers want it rigorously applied, while spoilsmen say that its enforcement will make both parties sick of it before 1892. Strange that Democratic administrations have never caught on to the idea that the way to get rid of an obnoxious law is to enforce it.

GOV. HILL has approved the bill forbidding the sale of cigars, tobacco or liquors to youngsters under 16. This is the first blow ever dealt by him to the liquor trade. He may find the sensation of doing the right thing on the subject so pleasant that he will be tempted to keep right on. All the world will take off its hat to David B. Hill when he signs the high license bill.

THE reservoir dam that broke above Johnstown was over 100 feet high and 90 feet thick at the base. This increased the size of a small natural lake from a mile to three miles in length and spread it over a narrow valley till it was a mile and a quarter wide. It was 300 feet above the level of Johnstown. The sudden emptying of this lake furnished only a portion of the water that destroyed the city.

TWENTY-THREE young colored men, stylishly dressed, were arrested yesterday afternoon for gathering on the sidewalk near St. Mark's colored church and ogling the dusky young ladies as they passed. The item is useful outside of New York, as showing that ogling is a misdemeanor and can be punished as such. The impudent or lecherous stare is offensive and insulting, regardless of "race, color or previous condition of servitude."

EDITOR A. C. T. Shubert of the Johnstown Free Press was among the drowned on Friday. Three of his sons had gone to Conemaugh the day before, and he with his wife and six other children visited a neighbor. As the water came the party were driven to the roof, where Shubert prepared a raft on which all embarked. A heavy timber flung across the raft by the water knocked Shubert off and he was lost. But his bark proved staunch, and all the rest of the party were rescued.

THE Democratic Albany Times praises Mr. Blaine's "brilliant achievement" in Berlin; and says that "the Samoan case was certainly conducted in a manner to gratify American pride." It thinks, however, that he will not have quite as easy work in dealing with England on the fisheries and Behring Sea questions, though it admits that "England of late years has exhibited anything but an aggressive spirit in dealing with first-class powers." Democratic opinion of Mr. Blaine appears to be improving.

THREE floods combined to work havoc at Johnstown. First, the river was filled to the top of its banks by the rains. Next came the bursting of the immense lumber boom on Stony Creek, which happened about one o'clock Friday afternoon, carrying down hundreds of thousands of logs, which swept away houses as though they were cards. Four hours later the dam of Conemaugh lake or reservoir broke, sending down a towering mass of water which swept over the remaining houses, burying them under fathoms of water or carrying them at once down stream. It was an awful conspiracy of the elements for ruin and death.

THE amount of beer manufactured in Albany by the five largest breweries is found by the Express to be from 105,000 to 115,000 barrels a year. Of three breweries whose total output is from 97,000 to 107,000 barrels about one third is sold out of the city; the other two, which turn out from 9,000 to 10,000 barrels dispose of their entire product in Albany. There is drank at the state capital, therefore, about 80,000 barrels a year. Albany's 100,000 people therefore drink 3,200,000 gallons of beer per year, or 32 gallons per head. This would give every man, woman and child nearly a pint bottle a day. What wonder that a good deal of our legislation is beery, or that the great Capitol sometimes gets in "a weaving way?"

THE floods from the late rains were terribly severe in many places. At Elmira Sunday night the water rose eighteen inches higher than ever before known. The Erie bridge was anchored by a heavy freight train upon it, and this formed a dam that forced back the water two feet deep into the streets. Yesterday afternoon two bodies floated down the river, and a roof to which three persons were clinging was said to have passed the city Saturday night. At Corning thirteen persons were reported drowned. In Andover a dozen bridges were carried away, at Wellsville both ends of the town were submerged, at Hornellsville several bridges are gone, and through the entire length of the Chemung valley the farms are under water. At Washington there was a flood so great in the Potomac that the streets in the southern part of the city were traversed in boats, while in Georgetown only the second stories of houses were visible. The floods were also very destructive in Virginia and throughout Western and Southern Pennsylvania. At Coburg, Canada, a cloudburst washed away all the bridges from Rice Lake to Lake Ontario, and the inmates of the houses had to be rescued in boats.

SCENES AND INCIDENTS.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 3.—The dark disaster of Friday with its attendant terrors, thrilled the universe, and drew two continents closer together in the bonds of sympathy that bind humanity. The midnight terrors of Ashtabula and Chatsworth evoked tears of pity from every fireside in Christendom; but the true story of Johnstown, when all is known, will stand solitary and alone as the acme of man's annihilation by the potent forces to which humanity is ever subject. The menacing clouds still hover darkly over the valley of death and the muttering thunder that ever and anon reverberates faintly in the distance seems the sardonic chuckle of the demon of destruction as he pursues his way to other lands and other homes. But the modern deluge has done its worst for Johnstown. The waters are rapidly subsiding, but the angry torrents still eddy around the City and the winged messenger of peace has not appeared to tell the pathetic tale of those who escaped the devastation of Black Friday. It is not a hackneyed utterance to say that no pen can adequately depict the horrors of this twin disaster holocaust and deluge, the deep emotions that well from the heart of every spectator find most eloquent expression in silence, the silence that bespeaks man's recognition of his subserviency to the elements and impotence to avert catastrophe. The insignificance of human life is only fully realized by those who witness such scenes as at Johnstown and Chatsworth and Ashtabula, and to those whose memory retains the picture of horror the decade experience cannot fail to be a fitting lesson. This morning opened up dark and dreary. Great drops of rain fell occasionally, and another storm seemed imminent. Every one feels thankful, however, that the weather still remains cool and that the gradual putrifaction of the hundreds of bodies that still line the streams and lie hidden under the miles of drift wood and debris is not unduly hastened. This morning the peculiar stench of decaying human flesh was plainly perceptible to the senses as one ascended the bank of Stony Creek for a half mile along the smoldering ruins of the wreck, and the most sceptical now conceive the worst and realize that hundreds, aye, perhaps thousands of bodies, lie charred and blackened beneath this great funeral pyre. Searchers wander wearily over the smoking mass, and as occasionally a sudden shout comes over the waters the patient watchers on the hill realize that another ghastly discovery has been added to that long list of revelations that chill every heart and draw tears to the eyes of all. From the banks many charred remains of victims of flames and flood are plainly visible to the naked eye, as the receding waters reluctantly give up their dead. Beneath almost every log or blackened beam a glistening skull or blanched remains of ribs or limbs can be seen. Since 10 o'clock last night the fire-engines have been busy. Water has been constantly playing on the burning ruins. At times the fire seems extinguished, but fitful flames suddenly break out afresh in some new quarter and again the water and flames wage fierce combat. The chief sensation of the morning was the united remonstrance of the physicians against the extinguishment of the burning wreck. They maintain that hundreds, if not thousands, of lifeless and decaying bodies lie beneath this mass of burning ruins, and "it would be better" they say, "to permit Nature's greatest scavenger—the flames—to pursue his work unmolested than to expose to further decay the horde of putrifying bodies that lie beneath this debris. There can be but one result. Days will elapse before the rubbish can be sufficiently removed to permit the recovery of these bodies, and long ere that every corpse will be a putrid mass yielding forth those frightful emanations of decaying human flesh that in a crowded community like this can give but one result, the dreadful typhus. Every battle field has demonstrated the necessity of the hasty interment of decaying bodies, and the stench that already arises is a forerunner of impending danger. Burn the wreck, burn the wreck."

A loud cry of indignation arose from the lips of the vast multitude, and the warnings of science were lost in the eager demands of those that sought the remains of those near and dear. The hose was again turned upon the hissing mass and rapidly the flames yielded to the supremacy of water. It is almost impossible to conceive the extent of these smoking ruins. An area of eight or 10 acres above the dam is covered to a depth of 40 feet with shattered houses, borne from the resident centre of Johnstown. In each of these houses it is estimated there were from one to 20 or 25 people. This is accepted as data upon which to estimate the number that perished on this spot, and if the data be correct the bodies that lie beneath these ruins must run well up into the hundreds if not the thousands. As yet there is no telling how many lives have been lost. Adjutant General Hastings stated this morning that he supposed there were at least 2,000 people under the burning debris, but the only way to find out how many lives were lost was to take a census of the people now living, and subtract that from the census before the flood. Said he: "In my opinion there are anywhere from 4,000 to 8,000 souls lost."

Senator Quay has contributed $500 to the flood sufferers. The four tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad below the stone bridge were filled yesterday with cars for two miles. Hundreds of men and women wandering from Morrellville to Johnstown. The sufferers last evening surrounded the freight cars fitted up to feed the hungry and shouted for bread. At first those in charge tossed the provisions into the crowd and an awful scramble followed. Children were trampled upon and women were unable to get food. Finally the police stopped the throwing of food and forced the crowd to pass in single file before the car doors. It was very cold here last night. Many poor women and children suffered. Councilman James Williams and Undertaker McNulty prepared 250 bodies yesterday for burial.

Hungarians attacked the cars standing on the tracks last night to seize clothing and provisions. One was arrested and the others were clubbed. The number of persons that searched the debris for plunder yesterday was surprising. Poorly clad men were seen carrying away fine ornamental clocks and rich bric-a-brac. Pianos by the dozen are scattered along the River but they are ruined. A man and his wife yesterday drew from a mass of rubbish a part of a cradle. They looked at it a moment in silence and then fell to weeping into each others arms. William Varner is a broken-hearted man. Of a family of 10 five are missing.

Hungarians and negroes are causing the most trouble. All day yesterday they filled up with whiskey taken from the River Saturday and were in a dangerous mood. The negroes in Johnstown were selling sacks of flour and dress goods for whiskey. They drove a wagon to the rear of a wrecked store and loaded it with goods and were hauling it away when stopped. A Deputy Sheriff shot a negro who was robbing a store. The wound was not serious and the man escaped. The militia is needed badly.

Only meagre details of the buildings swept away can be conveyed at this time. In the Second Ward there were 1,800 houses now there are seven standing. There are seven wards in the City and all are in about the same condition.

Charles Micer and wife, of Braddock, came here yesterday to look for their parents. It has been heard that Mr. and Mrs. Micer, Senior, were drowned with three daughters and a son. About a dozen printers were driven by the flood to the roof of their boarding house in Kernville. They were kept there 15 hours and were half frozen when taken off. One hundred and eighty bodies had been embalmed yesterday at Nineveh, and there is a report that 200 more have been discovered half buried in the mud on an Island between New-Florence and the place named. Hundreds of homeless people slept last night on the hillsides under tents sent from Pittsburg and other places. The Pennsylvania Railroad has got a track through to the City and provisions enough to meet all immediate wants have arrived. Those people who were not swept away or disabled are working earnestly for the revival of the stricken City, but it will take months of work to come anywhere near repairing the fearful damage. While it is about certain that the list of the lost will never be made complete, the supply of coffins sent in from Pittsburg and other points is so great that the Relief Committee has telegraphed that no more must be sent until ordered. All day yesterday men, women and children plodded about the desolate waste looking in vain to locate the boundaries of their former homes. Nothing but a wide expanse of mud, ornamented here and there with heaps of drift wood, remained for their contemplation. There were many pathetic scenes. Mrs. Fenn, who was half crazed with grief, said: "My husband and seven little children have been swept down with the flood and I am left alone. We were driven by the flood into the garret, but the water followed us there. Inch by inch it kept rising until our heads were crushing against the roof. I raised a window and one by one placed my darlings on some drift wood, trusting to the Great Creator. As I liberated the last one, my little boy, he looked at me and said: 'Mamma, you always told me that the Lord would care for me. Will He look after me now?' I saw him drift away with his loving face turned toward me, and with a prayer on my lips for his deliverance he passed from sight forever. The next moment the roof crashed in and I floated outside to be rescued 15 hours later from the roof of a house in Kernville."

Battery B, of Pittsburg, arrived in this City this morning, but was sent home immediately by General Hastings, who stated afterwards that the sending down of soldiers was like waving a red flag and it would only tend to create trouble. Everything was quiet here, and it was an insult to the citizens of Johnstown to send soldiers here at present. The Washington Infantry came in over the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and when Captain Shannon reported to Adjutant-General Hastings that gentleman said there was no need for soldiers' aid. If any were needed he would order out the State Guards. He had nothing to do with independent organizations. A train of five cars came in from Cumberland, Md., this morning loaded with provisions and 30 men to help clear up the debris. About 60 coffins containing bodies of unknown people are piled up on the platform at the general undertaking rooms. Up till today General Hastings had his undertakers on the east side of the River, but this morning he came over to the burning debris followed by about 125 men carrying coffins. He started to work immediately and has ordered men from Philadelphia, Harrisburg and other eastern towns to do laboring work. The stealing by Hungarians at Cambria City and points along the railroad has almost ceased. The report of several lynchings and the drowning of two Italians while being pursued by citizens yesterday put a damper on pilfering for a time. While Deputy Sheriff Rose was patrolling the River bank yesterday he found two Hungarians attempting to rob bodies, and at once gave chase. He found two taking to the woods, and pulled out a pistol and shot twice, wounding both men badly.

It has been necessary to establish the headquarters of the Associated Press in a building which is being used as one of the morgues, and its telegraph operators are sending the news to the world while surrounded by the bodies of the dead.

The Sheriff has taken charge of Johnstown and armed men are this morning patrolling the City. The people who have property in the limits are permitted to enter the City, if they are known, but otherwise it is impossible to get into the town. This regulation seems harsh but it is a necessity. The Relief Committee from Ohio are pitching their tents on the hillside. They have 900 tents and they are being utilized as fast as erected. For the first time since the flood men have been put to work on the debris at the bridge, and are hunting for the bodies that have not been burned beyond recognition. This morning a man, woman and cildh were taken from the ruins. The child was clasped in the arms of the woman, and the trio were evidently husband, wife and child. It is a most distressing sight to see the relatives of people who are supposed to be lost standing around watching every body as it is pulled out.

The relief train from Pittsburg over the Baltimore & Ohio Road reached here at 2 o'clock this morning. At each town along the line contributions were made to the already well-filled cars of provisions. When Johnstown was reached the train had 40 loaded cars. Every one on the train was anxious to assist in the work of rescue. A party was made up and started for the lower part of the town. The path was covered with trees, rocks, fences, parts of houses and every imaginable thing. Bureaus, beds, side-boards and furniture of all kinds were strewn from hill to hill. The whole valley of Stony Creek for miles up from Johnstown is filled with debris of all kinds. The line of the Baltimore & Ohio has been cleared of debris and it is piled up on each side as high as the tops of the cars.

From the Pennsylvania Railroad to Main-street there is nothing standing but the stone church and the large brick school-house. The Mansion House is gone and over 100 people were lost there. From the Baltimore & Ohio depot you can see for blocks in every direction and between the depot and the point there is standing only a part of the Morrell block and two small brick offices that were protected by the Morrell building. The town was at rest early in the morning. Every one was thoroughly exhausted with the terrible strain and the work of the last two days and nights. The town is under martial law, and every one who goes about the place is challenged and required to give an account of himself. The water has subsided to a great extent and the streets in the main part of the town are free from water. The falling water has laid bare the terrible work of the flood, and the full extent of the disaster is only being ascertained now. The streets are one sickening, foul-smelling mass of wood and debris and the work of searching for bodies has only fairly began. The work of identifying the dead goes on very slowly, and comparatively few so far have been identified. Among those identified to-day were Muns Wolf and wife, M. Goldher, a merchant on Main-street, whose body was sent to Baltimore accompanied by his daughter; Mrs. J. Katerstein and son, who were visiting Mr. Bohem, the father of Mrs. Katerstein. They were standing in Bohem's store on Main-street when the flood came. The Hotel Holbert has been entirely washed away and 72 persons perished in the wreck. Behind the Morrell property lies a locomotive which was carried over the bridge and swept up by the flood.

Frank McDonald, a railroad conductor, was at the Pennsylvania depot when the deluge came. He said: "When I first saw the flood it was 30 feet high and gradually rose to 40. Fifteen minutes before the flood came Doughty, the Railroad agent, read me a telegram he had just received saying the South Fork dam had broken. As soon as he heard this the people in the station, numbering 600, made a rush for a hill. I certainly think I saw 1,000 bodies go over the bridge. The first house that came down struck the bridge and at once took fire, and as fast as the others came down they were consumed. I believe I am safe in saying I saw 1,000 bodies burn. I have no idea that had the bridge been blown up the loss of life would have been any less. They would have floated a little further with the same certain death. Then, again, it was impossible for anyone to have reached the bridge to blow it up, for the waters came so fast no one could have done it. I saw 15 to 18 bodies go over the bridge at the same time." From under the large brick school house 124 bodies were taken last night and to-day, and in every corner and place the bodies are being found and buried as fast as possible. The necessity for speedy burial is becoming manifest, and the stench arising from the bodies is sickening. A number of bodies have been found with bullet-holes in them, showing that suicide was resorted to. Up to this morning people leaving here who lost whole families and parts of families hardly seemed to realize what a dreadful calamity had befallen them. However, this morning, people are getting to understand the situation and agony is stamped on the faces of every one, and it is truly a city of mourning. Ten bodies were taken out of the debris at 9:20 this morning. There was nothing to identify them, as they were burned almost to a crisp.

Three hundred bodies have been discovered in the sand at Kernville, near the mouth of Sandy Creek.

A WARNING HORSEMAN.

A nameless Paul Revere lies somewhere among the nameless dead. Who he is may never be known, but his ride will be famous in local history. Mounted on a big bay horse he came riding down the pike which passes through Conemaugh to Johnstown shouting: "Run for your lives to the hills," "Run to the hills." The people crowded out of their houses along the thickly settled street awe-struck and wondering. Nobody knew the man and some believed he was a maniac and laughed. At a quick pace he rode and shrilly rang out his awful cry. In a few moments, however, there came a cloud of ruin down the broad streets, down the narrow alleys, grinding, twisting, hurling, overturning, crashing, annihilating the weak and the strong. It was the charge of the flood wearing its coronet of ruin and devastation, which grew at every instant of its progress.

From 30 to 40 feet high was this sea and it traveled with terrible swiftness. On and on raced the rider and on and on rushed the waves. Dozens of people took heed of the warning and ran up to the hills. Just as the rider turned across the railroad bridge the mighty wave fell upon him and horse, rider and bridge all went out into choas together. A few feet further on several cars of the Pennsylvania Railroad train from Pittsburg were caught up and hurled into the cauldron. The dam broke in the center at 3 o'clock, Friday afternoon, and at 4 o'clock it was dry. The great body of water passed out in one hour. Messrs. Park and VanBuren, who are building a new drainage system at the lake, tried to arrest the disaster by digging a sluice-way on one side to ease the pressure on the dam. They had about 40 men at work and did all they could without avail. The water passed over the dam about a foot above its top, beginning at about 2:30 o'clock. Whatever happened in the way of a cloudburst took place during the night. There had been but little rain up to dark. When the workmen awoke in the morning the lake was very full and was rising a foot an hour. It kept on rising until at 2 o'clock when it first began breaking over the dam and undermining it. Men were sent three or four times during the day to warn people below of their danger. When the final break came, at 3 o'clock, there was a sound like tremendous and continued peals of thunder. Trees, rocks and earth shot up into mid-air in great columns, and then the waves started down the ravine. A farmer who escaped said the water did not come down like a wave, but jumped on his house and beat it to fragments in an instant. He was safe on the hillside, but his wife and two children were killed. At present the lake looks like the crater of an extinct volcano or a huge mud-puddle with stumps of trees and rocks scattered over it. There is a small stream of muddy water running through the centre of the lake side. The dam was 70 feet high and the break is about 200 feet wide and there is but a small poriton of the dam left on either side. No damage was done to any of the buildings belonging to the Club. The whole South Fork is swept with not a tree standing. There are but one or two small streams showing here and there in the lake. Many of the workmen carried off baskets full of fish which they caught in the mud. The rescuing parties who are at work on the mass of unburned wreckage in the River above the stone bridge are finding bodies and fragments of bodies at the rate of from 10 to 15 an hour. In other parts of the submerged districts many bodies are being taken out. A careful estimate at this time of the bodies recovered everywhere puts it at from 700 to 800. Three hundred bodies were laying on the sand at Kernville at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The sight was one of most distressing ever witnessed. A crowd of 500 are gathered around endeavoring to find the bodies of friends or relatives. There were no coffins there and the bodies had to be laid on the ground. Five hundred coffins are now on the way there and the undertakers have sent for 500 additional ones. Kernville from now on will be the place where most of the bodies will be found. The water has fallen so much that it is possible to get at the bodies, but all of them have to be dug out of the sand. It is believed that most of the bodies that will be found at Kernville are under a large pile of debris about an acre in length. This is where most of the buildings drifted, and it is natural to suppose the bodies floated with them. A cold wave has struck the town and the people are badly in need of clothing. It is almost impossible to get anything to eat.

LOSS 12,000 TO 15,000.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 3.—General Hastings has telegraphed the following to the Manager of the Postal Telegraph Company in this City: "Better inform Governor Beaver that this morning's reports give the number lost at Johnstown at between 12,000 and 15,000. The greatest disorder prevails. The place is infested with thieves and vandals, who are robbing the dead and appropriating everything they can lay their hands on. These people are eating almost everything in the shape of provisions sent here for the flood sufferers."

CAUSE OF THE DAM BURST.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 3.—The first man from the dam at South Fork has just arrived. The dam burst open in the centre of a broad break.

RELIEF FOR THE SUFFERERS.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

TROY, N. Y., June 3.—Subscriptions exceeding $1,500 for relief of the Pennsylvania flood sufferers were received to-day by the Troy Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 3.—A relief train on the Western New-York & Pennsylvania Railroad will leave here for Pittsburg tonight with contributions of food, clothing, etc., for the flood sufferers.

A meeting of citizens was held at the Mayor's office to-day to devise means for the aid of the flood sufferers. The Mayor will send $1,000 by telegraph this afternoon. A committee was appointed to raise funds. The Merchants Exchange also started a relief fund this morning.

OPENING COMMUNICATION.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

EASTON, Pa., June 3.—The Lehigh Valley tracks from New-York to Buffalo, via Lyons, are open and the road is running through freight. The Lehigh River here is over its banks. Canal boats cannot run and the cotton and wire mills in South-Easton could not start to-day.

PHILADELPHIA, June 3.—The Pennsylvania main line is still closed to travel west of Lancaster. The line to Washington was opened shortly before midnight. One hundred and sixty car-loads of heavy bridge timber have been started over the road for points where bridges have been damaged. The Company has purchased 4,000,000 feet of heavy timber.

The best information that can be obtained to-day at the Pennsylvania Railroad office in this City is to the effect that a route will be patched up to Altoona within 36 hours, thus giving the 800 or more east and west-bound passengers laid up at that place an opportunity to get away from there. It is not believed passengers can be conveyed from Harrisburg to Pittsburg over the main line inside of a week or 10 days. No direct intelligence of any sort has been received from Lock Haven since 9 o'clock Friday night. The dispatch then received stated that the lumber boom had broken and the town was flooded. The wildest kind of rumors are received in regard to the situation at that place, but they lack confirmation. It is believed, however, that the loss of property will be enormous.

FLOODS IN OTHER PLACES.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

ELMIRA, N. Y., June 3.—The damage in this City alone from the flood will exceed over $100,000. Trains on all railroads centering here, save the Northern Central, are beginning to move through slowly. Erie trains that reached here Friday night and Saturday are just going west on the Lackawanna tracks. The Northern Central is not open south of here. A dispatch received from Corning at noon says: The flood in this section was the greatest ever known. Probably 100 lives were imperiled here Saturday afternoon, the houses being surrounded by the angry current, but all were rescued by boats except one, a young boy named O'Brien who was drowned in his house. Almost all the country from Hornellsville to Corning was under water. The loss in Steuben County will probably exceed $1,000,000. The Fall Brook Coal Company is one of the greatest losers. They succeeded in getting a train out for Geneva, but south of Williamsport the condition is fearful. A telegram received this morning says that in eight miles from Stokesdale Junction, Pa., to Ansonia 13 drowned bodies have been found. It is believed that $1,000,000 will not cover the loss of the Fall Brook Company, and the worst is not known regarding the loss of life on the Pine Creek division.

SALTSBURG, Pa., June 3.—The body of John Stitt, of Blairsville, was recovered yesterday near here. The body of a girl about 13 years of age was found opposite Avonmore, and the body of a large woman, evidently a foreigner, was taken from the drift near Salina tunnel.

Financial Doings on Wall-Street To-Day—The Leading Closing Quotations.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

NEW-YORK, June 3.—The second day without ticker service opened on the Stock Exchange in a dismal manner. Selling orders were received from many sources and their execution caused sharp declines. There was no chance, however, to create a demand at the decline on account of lack of reports and before the lower range of prices could be published the room traders had absorbed the cheap stocks. Small commission houses are at the mercy of the room traders and large houses with telephone connections and few of them are able to execute any orders. In the Consolidated Exchange the effect of the movement was felt far more heavily than on Saturday. The chalkers continued to mark fictitious quotations on the board, but the members had discovered their unreliability and would no longer trade on them. As a result business there was at a complete standstill. It is understood arrangements have been completed by the Stock Exchange for a reorganization of the ticker service at once, but nothing will be done until the axe brigade, which is at work on Broad-street to-day, has severed the wires from all offices which were suspected of being leaky, and then new communication with the Exchange will be refused.

Saved His Cow but Lost His Life.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 3.—John O'Grady, a farmer at Blodgett's Mills, Cortland County, was killed by a Delaware, Lackawanna & Western passenger train at that place this morning. A cow belonging to O'Grady had strayed from its enclosure and was walking on the track. While trying to get it off the track O'Grady was struck by the locomotive and killed. The cow escaped.

I BELIEVE IT YET.

I.

There's some useful information that I got
from mother dear,
One evening when I went my girl to see;
She told me I had better be tasteful in my dress,
If from bitter disappointment I'd be free.
She told that Marks Jacobs made suits the
handsomest;
That to his store was just the place to go,
That with his help I'd surely win the girl I
loved best:
I believed it, for my mother told me so

CHORUS.

She told me that a manly man should dress
in manly style,
And always like a gentleman should go;
That for this service I could trust Marks
Jacobs all the while;
I believed it, for my mother told me so.

II.

And so I went to Jacobs' store, 184 The Strand,
The next morning at the rising of the sun,
And picked me out the finest that this artist
had on hand,
And in just two days the suit complete
was done.
Then I hied me to the mansion where lived
my Katie Brown,
And her greeting was the sweetest man
can know;
She said I was the handsomest, the noblest
man in town;
I believed it, for my sweetheart told me so.

CHORUS.

She told me something better yet; she said
she would be mine,
That through this life with me she'd gladly go,
If I would wear Marks Jacobs' suits, so fitting,
neat and fine;
I believed it, for my Katie told me so.

NOTES ON NEWS OF THE DAY.

THOSE who were caught mangling the bodies of the dead at Johnstown and pilfering their jewelry and clothing were Hungarians. Our Congress has legislated the Chinese out, but no Chinaman could have perpetrated such ghoulish deeds. The Hungarian had better be told to go.

FIFTEEN THOUSAND strangers were in Johnstown yesterday to see the ruins. They became as hungry as the survivors of the wrecked homes themselves, and there was nothing to feed them. The Johnstown authorities have sent out appeals to strangers to keep away. They should send their money now, but postpone their visits.

YESTERDAY 2,095 European immigrants landed at Castle Garden. The United States has not room for such an influx, neither has it any use for the cast-off people of the old world cities. Unless something is done to restrict immigration and especially to assort our immigrants, the question will be taken up in politics and speedily absorb all other issues.

EVERYBODY in New York is pleased with Theodore Rosevelt's determination to enforce the civil service law. Reformers want it rigorously applied, while spoilsmen say that its enforcement will make both parties sick of it before 1892. Strange that Democratic administrations have never caught on to the idea that the way to get rid of an obnoxious law is to enforce it.

GOV. HILL has approved the bill forbidding the sale of cigars, tobacco or liquors to youngsters under 16. This is the first blow ever dealt by him to the liquor trade. He may find the sensation of doing the right thing on the subject so pleasant that he will be tempted to keep right on. All the world will take off its hat to David B. Hill when he signs the high license bill.

THE reservoir dam that broke above Johnstown was over 100 feet high and 90 feet thick at the base. This increased the size of a small natural lake from a mile to three miles in length and spread it over a narrow valley till it was a mile and a quarter wide. It was 300 feet above the level of Johnstown. The sudden emptying of this lake furnished only a portion of the water that destroyed the city.

TWENTY-THREE young colored men, stylishly dressed, were arrested yesterday afternoon for gathering on the sidewalk near St. Mark's colored church and ogling the dusky young ladies as they passed. The item is useful outside of New York, as showing that ogling is a misdemeanor and can be punished as such. The impudent or lecherous stare is offensive and insulting, regardless of "race, color or previous condition of servitude."

EDITOR A. C. T. Shubert of the Johnstown Free Press was among the drowned on Friday. Three of his sons had gone to Conemaugh the day before, and he with his wife and six other children visited a neighbor. As the water came the party were driven to the roof, where Shubert prepared a raft on which all embarked. A heavy timber flung across the raft by the water knocked Shubert off and he was lost. But his bark proved staunch, and all the rest of the party were rescued.

THE Democratic Albany Times praises Mr. Blaine's "brilliant achievement" in Berlin, and says that "the Samoan case was certainly conducted in a manner to gratify American pride." It thinks, however, that he will not have quite as easy work in dealing with England on the fisheries and Behring Sea questions, though it admits that "England of late years has exhibited anything but an aggressive spirit in dealing with first-class powers." Democratic opinion of Mr. Blaine appears to be improving.

THREE floods combined to work havoc at Johnstown. First, the river was filled to the top of its banks by the rains. Next came the bursting of the immense lumber boom on Stony Creek, which happened about one o'clock Friday afternoon, carrying down hundreds of thousands of logs, which swept away houses as though they were cards. Four hours later the dam of Conemaugh lake or reservoir broke, sending down a towering mass of water which swept over the remaining houses, burying them under fathoms of water or carrying them at once down stream. It was an awful conspiracy of the elements for ruin and death.

THE amount of beer manufactured in Albany by the five largest breweries is found by the Express to be from 105,000 to 115,000 barrels a year. Of three breweries whose total output is from 97,000 to 107,000 barrels about one third is sold out of the city; the other two, which turn out from 9,000 to 10,000 barrels dispose of their entire product in Albany. There is drank at the state capital, therefore, about 80,000 barrels a year. Albany's 100,000 people therefore drink 3,200,000 gallons of beer per year, or 32 gallons per head. This would give every man, woman and child nearly a pint bottle a day. What wonder that a good deal of our legislation is beery, or that the great Capitol sometimes gets in "a weaving way?"

THE floods from the late rains were terribly severe in many places. At Elmira Sunday night the water rose eighteen inches higher than ever before known. The Erie bridge was anchored by a heavy freight train upon it, and this formed a dam that forced back the water two feet deep into the streets. Yesterday afternoon two bodies floated down the river, and a roof to which three persons were clinging was said to have passed the city Saturday night. At Corning thirteen persons were reported drowned. In Andover a dozen bridges were carried away, at Wellsville both ends of the town were submerged, at Hornellsville several bridges are gone, and through the entire length of the Chemung valley the farms are under water. At Washington there was a flood so great in the Potomac that the streets in the southern part of the city were traversed in boats, while in Georgetown only the second stories of houses were visible. The floods were also very destructive in Virginia and throughout Western and Southern Pennsylvania. At Coburg, Canada, a cloudburst washed away all the bridges from Rice Lake to Lake Ontario, and the inmates of the houses had to be rescued in boats.

SCENES AND INCIDENTS.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 3.—The dark disaster of Friday with its attendant terrors, thrilled the universe, and drew two continents closer together in the bonds of sympathy that bind humanity. The midnight terrors of Ashtabula and Chatsworth evoked tears of pity from every fireside in Christendom; but the true story of Johnstown, when all is known, will stand solitary and alone as the acme of man's annihilation by the potent forces to which humanity is ever subject. The menacing clouds still hover darkly over the valley of death and the muttering thunder that ever and anon reverberates faintly in the distance seems the sardonic chuckle of the demon of destruction as he pursues his way to other lands and other homes. But the modern deluge has done its worst for Johnstown. The waters are rapidly subsiding, but the angry torrents still eddy around the City and the winged messenger of peace has not appeared to tell the pathetic tale of those who escaped the devastation of Black Friday. It is not a hackneyed utterance to say that no pen can adequately depict the horrors of this twin disaster holocaust and deluge, the deep emotions that well from the heart of every spectator find most eloquent expression in silence, the silence that bespeaks man's recognition of his subserviency to the elements and impotence to avert catastrophe. The insignificance of human life is only fully realized by those who witness such scenes as at Johnstown and Chatsworth and Ashtabula, and to those whose memory retains the picture of horror the decade experience cannot fail to be a fitting lesson. This morning opened up dark and dreary. Great drops of rain fell occasionally, and another storm seemed imminent. Every one feels thankful, however, that the weather still remains cool and that the gradual putrifaction of the hundreds of bodies that still line the streams and lie hidden under the miles of drift wood and debris is not unduly hastened. This morning the peculiar stench of decaying human flesh was plainly perceptitable to the senses as one ascended the bank of Stony Creek for a half mile along the smoldering ruins of the wreck, and the most sceptical now conceive the worst and realize that hundreds, aye, perhaps thousands of bodies, lie charred and blackened beneath this great funeral pyre. Searchers wander wearily over the smoking mass, and as occasionally a sudden shout comes over the waters the patient watchers on the hill realize that another ghastly discovery has been added to that long list of revelations that chill every heart and draw tears to the eyes of all. From the banks many charred remains of victims of flames and flood are plainly visible to the naked eye, as the receding waters reluctantly give up their dead. Beneath almost every log or blackened beam a glistening skull or blanched remains of ribs or limbs can be seen. Since 10 o'clock last night the fire-engines have been busy. Water has been constantly playing on the burning ruins. At times the fire seems extinguished, but fitful flames suddenly break out afresh in some new quarter and again the water and flames wage fierce combat. The chief sensation of the morning was the united remonstrance of the physicians against the extinguishment of the burning wreck. They maintain that hundreds, if not thousands, of lifeless and decaying bodies lie beneath this mass of burning ruins, and "it would be better" they say, "to permit Nature's greatest scavenger—the flames—to pursue his work unmolested than to expose to further decay the horde of putrifying bodies that lie beneath this debris. There can be but one result. Days will elapse before the rubbish can be sufficiently removed to permit the recovery of these bodies, and long ere that every corpse will be a putrid mass yielding forth those frightful emanations of decaying human flesh that in a crowded community like this can give but one result, the dreadful typhus. Every battle field has demonstrated the necessity of the hasty interment of decaying bodies, and the stench that already arises is a forerunner of impending danger. Burn the wreck, burn the wreck."

A loud cry of indignation arose from the lips of the vast multitude, and the warnings of science were lost in the eager demands of those that sought the remains of those near and dear. The hose was again turned upon the hissing mass and rapidly the flames yielded to the supremacy of water. It is almost impossible to conceive the extent of these smoking ruins. An area of eight or 10 acres above the dam is covered to a depth of 40 feet with shattered houses, borne from the resident centre of Johnstown. In each of these houses it is estimated there were from one to 20 or 25 people. This is accepted as data upon which to estimate the number that perished on this spot, and if the data be correct the bodies that lie beneath these ruins must run well up into the hundreds if not the thousands. As yet there is no telling how many lives have been lost. Adjutant General Hastings stated this morning that he supposed there were at least 2,000 people under the burning debris, but the only way to find out how many lives were lost was to take a census of the people now living, and subtract that from the census before the flood. Said he: "In my opinion there are anywhere from 4,000 to 8,000 souls lost."

Senator Quay has contributed $500 to the flood sufferers. The four tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad below the stone bridge were filled yesterday with cars for two miles. Hundreds of men and women wandering from Morrellville to Johnstown. The sufferers last evening surrounded the freight cars fitted up to feed the hungry and shouted for bread. At first those in charge tossed the provisions into the crowd and an awful scramble followed. Children were trampled upon and women were unable to get food. Finally the police stopped the throwing of food and forced the crowd to pass in single file before the car doors. It was very cold here last night. Many poor women and children suffered. Councilman James Williams and Undertaker McNulty prepared 250 bodies yesterday for burial.

Hungarians attacked the cars standing on the tracks last night to seize clothing and provisions. One was arrested and the others were clubbed. The number of persons that searched the debris for plunder yesterday was surprising. Poorly clad men were seen carrying away fine ornamental clocks and rich bric-a-brac. Pianos by the dozen are scattered along the River but they are ruined. A man and his wife yesterday drew from a mass of rubbish a part of a cradle. They looked at it a moment in silence and then fell to weeping into each others arms. William Varner is a broken-hearted man. Of a family of 10 five are missing.

Hungarians and negroes are causing the most trouble All day yesterday they filled up with whiskey taken from the River Saturday and were in a dangerous mood. The negroes in Johnstown were selling sacks of flour and dress goods for whiskey. They drove a wagon to the rear of a wrecked store and loaded it with goods and were hauling it away when stopped. A Deputy Sheriff shot a negro who was robbing a store. The wound was not serious and the man escaped. The militia is needed badly.

Only meagre details of the buildings swept away can be conveyed at this time. In the Second Ward there were 1,800 houses now there are seven standing. There are seven wards in the City and all are in about the same condition.

Charles Micer and wife, of Braddock, came here yesterday to look for their parents. It has been heard that Mr. and Mrs. Micer, Senior, were drowned with three daughters and a son. About a dozen printers were driven by the flood to the roof of their boarding house in Kernville. They were kept there 15 hours and were half frozen when taken off. One hundred and eighty bodies had been embalmed yesterday at Nineveh, and there is a report that 200 more have been discovered half buried in the mud on an Island between New-Florence and the place named. Hundreds of homeless people slept last night on the hillsides under tents sent from Pittsburg and other places. The Pennsylvania Railroad has got a track through to the City and provisions enough to meet all immediate wants have arrived. Those people who were not swept away or disabled are working earnestly for the revival of the stricken City, but it will take months of work to come anywhere near repairing the fearful damage. While it is about certain that the list of the lost will never be made complete, the supply of coffins sent in from Pittsburg and other points is so great that the Relief Committee has telegraphed that no more must be sent until ordered. All day yesterday men, women and children plodded about the desolate waste looking in vain to locate the boundaries of their former homes. Nothing but a wide expanse of mud, ornamented here and there with heaps of drift wood, remained for their contemplation. There were many pathetic scenes. Mrs. Fenn, who was half crazed with grief, said: "My husband and seven little children have been swept down with the flood and I am left alone. We were driven by the flood into the garret, but the water followed us there. Inch by inch it kept rising until our heads were crushing against the roof. I raised a window and one by one placed my darlings on some drift wood, trusting to the Great Creator. As I liberated the last one, my little boy, he looked at me and said: 'Mamma, you always told me that the Lord would care for me. Will He look after me now?' I saw him drift away with his loving face turned toward me, and with a prayer on my lips for his deliverance he passed from sight forever. The next moment the roof crashed in and I floated outside to be rescued 15 hours later from the roof of a house in Kernville."

Battery B, of Pittsburg, arrived in this City this morning, but was sent home immediately by General Hastings, who stated afterwards that the sending down of soldiers was like waving a red flag and it would only tend to create trouble. Everything was quiet here, and it was an insult to the citizens of Johnstown to send soldiers here at present. The Washington Infantry came in over the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and when Captain Shannon reported to Adjutant-General Hastings that gentleman said there was no need for soldiers' aid. If any were needed he would order out the State Guards. He had nothing to do with independent organizations. A train of five cars came in from Cumberland, Md., this morning loaded with provisions and 30 men to help clear up the debris. About 60 coffins containing bodies of unknown people are piled up on the platform at the general undertaking rooms. Up till to-day General Hastings had his undertakers on the east side of the River, but this morning he came over to the burning debris followed by about 125 men carrying coffins. He started to work immediately and has ordered men from Philadelphia, Harrisburg and other eastern towns to do laboring work. The stealing by Hungarians at Cambria City and points along the railroad has almost ceased. The report of several lynchings and the drowning of two Italians while being pursued by citizens yesterday put a damper on pilfering for a time. While Deputy Sheriff Rose was patrolling the River bank yesterday he found two Hungarians attempting to rob bodies, and at once gave chase. He found two taking to the woods, and pulled out a pistol and shot twice, wounding both men badly.

It has been necessary to establish the headquarters of the Associated Press in a building which is being used as one of the morgues, and its telegraph operators are sending the news to the world while surrounded by the bodies of the dead.

The Sheriff has taken charge of Johnstown and armed men are this morning patrolling the City. The people who have property in the limits are permitted to enter the City, if they are known, but otherwise it is impossible to get into the town. This regulation seems harsh but it is a necessity. The Relief Committee from Ohio are pitching their tents on the hillside. They have 900 tents and they are being utilized as fast as erected. For the first time since the flood men have been put to work on the debris at the bridge, and are hunting for the bodies that have not been burned beyond recognition. This morning a man, woman and cildhjwere taken from the ruins. The child was clasped in the arms of the woman, and the trio were evidently husband, wife and child. It is a most distressing sight to see the relatives of people who are supposed to be lost standing around watching every body as it is pulled out.

The relief train from Pittsburg over the Baltimore & Ohio Road reached here at 2 o'clock this morning. At each town along the line contributions were made to the already well-filled cars of provisions. When Johnstown was reached the train had 10 loaded cars. Every one on the train was anxious to assist in the work of rescue. A party was made up and started for the lower part of the town. The path was covered with trees, rocks, fences, parts of houses and every imaginable thing. Bureaus, beds, side-boards and furniture of all kinds were strewn from hill to hill. The whole valley of Stony Creek for miles up from Johnstown is filled with debris of all kinds. The line of the Baltimore & Ohio has been cleared of debris and it is piled up on each side as high as the tops of the cars.

From the Pennsylvania Railroad to Main-street there is nothing standing but the stone church and the large brick school-house. The Mansion House is gone and over 100 people were lost there. From the Baltimore & Ohio depot you can see for blocks in every direction and between the depot and the point there is standing only a part of the Morrell block and two small brick offices that were protected by the Morrell building. The town was at rest early in the morning. Every one was thoroughly exhausted with the terrible strain and the work of the last two days and nights. The town is under martial law, and every one who goes about the place is challenged and required to give an account of himself. The water has subsided to a great extent and the streets in the main part of the town are free from water. The falling water has laid bare the terrible work of the flood, and the full extent of the disaster is only being ascertained now. The streets are one sickening, foul-smelling mass of wood and debris and the work of searching for bodies has only fairly began. The work of identifying the dead goes on very slowly, and comparatively few so far have been identified. Among those identified to-day were Muns Wolf and wife, M. Goldher, a merchant on Main-street, whose body was sent to Baltimore accompanied by his daughter; Mrs. J. Katerstein and son, who were visiting Mr. Bohem, the father of Mrs. Katerstein. They were standing in Bohem's store on Main-street when the flood came. The Hotel Holbert has been entirely washed away and 72 persons perished in the wreck. Behind the Morrell property lies a locomotive which was carried over the bridge and swept up by the flood.

Frank McDonald, a railroad conductor, was at the Pennsylvania depot when the deluge came. He said: "When I first saw the flood it was 30 feet high and gradually rose to 40. Fifteen minutes before the flood came Doughty, the Railroad agent, read me a telegram he had just received saying the South Fork dam had broken. As soon as he heard this the people in the station, numbering 600, made a rush for a hill. I certainly think I saw 1,000 bodies go over the bridge. The first house that came down struck the bridge and at once took fire, and as fast as the others came down they were consumed. I believe I am safe in saying I saw 1,000 bodies burn. I have no idea that had the bridge been blown up the loss of life would have been any less. They would have floated a little further with the same certain death. Then, again, it was impossible for anyone to have reached the bridge to blow it up, for the waters came so fast no one could have done it. I saw 15 to 18 bodies go over the bridge at the same time." From under the large brick school house 124 bodies were taken last night and to-day, and in every corner and place the bodies are being found and buried as fast as possible. The necessity for speedy burial is becoming manifest, and the stench arising from the bodies is sickening. A number of bodies have been found with bullet-holes in them, showing that suicide was resorted to. Up to this morning people leaving here who lost whole families and parts of families hardly seemed to realize what a dreadful calamity had befallen them. However, this morning, people are getting to understand the situation and agony is stamped on the faces of every one, and it is truly a city of mourning. Ten bodies were taken out of the debris at 9:20 this morning. There was nothing to identify them, as they were burned almost to a crisp. Three hundred bodies have been discovered in the sand at Kernville, near the mouth of Sandy Creek.

A WARNING HORSEMAN.

A nameless Paul Revere lies somewhere among the nameless dead. Who he is may never be known, but his ride will be famous in local history. Mounted on a big bay horse he came riding down the pike which passes through Conemaugh to Johnstown shouting: "Run for your lives to the hills," "Run to the hills." The people crowded out of their houses along the thickly settled street awe-struck and wondering. Nobody knew the man and some believed he was a maniac and laughed. At a quick pace he rode and shrilly rang out his awful cry. In a few moments, however, there came a cloud of ruin down the broad streets, down the narrow alleys, grinding, twisting, hurling, overturning, crashing, annihilating the weak and the strong. It was the charge of the flood wearing its coronet of ruin and devastation, which grew at every instant of its progress.

From 30 to 40 feet high was this sea and it traveled with terrible swiftness. On and on raced the rider and on and on rushed the waves. Dozens of people took heed of the warning and ran up to the hills. Just as the rider turned across the railroad bridge the mighty wave fell upon him and horse, rider and bridge all went out into choas together. A few feet further on several cars of the Pennsylvania Railroad train from Pittsburg were caught up and hurled into the cauldron. The dam broke in the center at 3 o'clock, Friday afternoon, and at 4 o'clock it was dry. The great body of water passed out in one hour. Messrs. Park and VanBuren, who are building a new drainage system at the lake, tried to arrest the disaster by digging a sluice-way on one side to ease the pressure on the dam. They had about 40 men at work and did all they could without avail. The water passed over the dam about a foot above its top, beginning at about 2:30 o'clock. Whatever happened in the way of a cloud-burst took place during the night. There had been but little rain up to dark. When the workmen awoke in the morning the lake was very full and was rising a foot an hour. It kept on rising until at 2 o'clock when it first began breaking over the dam and undermining it. Men were sent three or four times during the day to warn people below of their danger. When the final break came, at 3 o'clock, there was a sound like tremendous and continued peals of thunder. Trees, rocks and earth shot up into mid-air in great columns, and then the waves started down the ravine. A farmer who escaped said the water did not come down like a wave, but jumped on his house and beat it to fragments in an instant. He was safe on the hillside, but his wife and two children were killed. At present the lake looks like the crater of an extinct volcano or a huge mud-puddle with stumps of trees and rocks scattered over it. There is a small stream of muddy water running through the centre of the lake side. The dam was 70 feet high and the break is about 200 feet wide and there is but a small poriton of the dam lett on either side. No damage was done to any of the buildings belonging to the Club. The whole South Fork is swept with not a tree standing. There are but one or two small streams showing here and there in the lake. Many of the workmen carried off baskets full of fish which they caught in the mud. The rescuing parties who are at work on the mass of unburned wreckage in the River above the stone bridge are finding bodies and fragments of bodies at the rate of from 10 to 15 an hour. In other parts of the submerged districts many bodies are being taken out. A careful estimate at this time of the bodies recovered everywhere puts it at from 700 to 800. Three hundred bodies were laying on the sand at Kernville at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The sight was one of most distressing ever witnessed. A crowd of 500 are gathered around endeavoring to find the bodies of friends or relatives. There were no coffins there and the bodies had to be laid on the ground. Five hundred coffins are now on the way there and the undertakers have sent for 500 additional ones. Kernville from now on will be the place where most of the bodies will be found. The water has fallen so much that it is possible to get at the bodies, but all of them have to be dug out of the sand. It is believed that most of the bodies that will be found at Kernville are under a large pile of debris about an acre in length. This is where most of the buildings drifted, and it is natural to suppose the bodies floated with them. A cold wave has struck the town and the people are badly in need of clothing. It is almost impossible to get anything to eat.

LOSS 12,000 TO 15,000.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 3.—General Hastings has telegraphed the following to the Manager of the Postal Telegraph Company in this City: "Better inform Governor Beaver that this morning's reports give the number lost at Johnstown at between 12,000 and 15,000. The greatest disorder prevails. The place is infested with thieves and vandals, who are robbing the dead and appropriating everything they can lay their hands on. These people are eating almost everything in the shape of provisions sent here for the flood sufferers."

CAUSE OF THE DAM BURST.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 3.—The first man from the dam at South Fork has just arrived. The dam burst open in the centre of a broad break.

RELIEF FOR THE SUFFERERS.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

TROY, N. Y., June 3.—Subscriptions exceeding $1,500 for relief of the Pennsylvania flood sufferers were received to-day by the Troy Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 3.—A relief train on the Western New-York & Pennsylvania Railroad will leave here for Pittsburg to-night with contributions of food, clothing, etc., for the flood sufferers.

A meeting of citizens was held at the Mayor's office to-day to devise means for the aid of the flood sufferers. The Mayor will send $1,000 by telegraph this afternoon. A committee was appointed to raise funds. The Merchants Exchange also started a relief fund this morning.

OPENING COMMUNICATION.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

EASTON, Pa., June 3.—The Lehigh Valley tracks from New-York to Buffalo, via Lyons, are open and the road is running through freight. The Lehigh River here is over its banks. Canal boats cannot run and the cotton and wire mills in South Easton could not start to-day.

PHILADELPHIA, June 3.—The Pennsylvania main line is still closed to travel west of Lancaster. The line to Washington was opened shortly before midnight. One hundred and sixty car-loads of heavy bridge timber have been started over the road for points where bridges have been damaged. The Company has purchased 4,000,000 feet of heavy timber.

The best information that can be obtained to-day at the Pennsylvania Railroad office in this City is to the effect that a route will be patched up to Altoona within 36 hours, thus giving the 800 or more east and west-bound passengers laid up at that place an opportunity to get away from there. It is not believed passengers can be conveyed from Harrisburg to Pittsburg over the main line inside of a week or 10 days. No direct intelligence of any sort has been received from Lock Haven since 9 o'clock Friday night. The dispatch then received stated that the lumber boom had broken and the town was flooded. The wildest kind of rumors are received in regard to the situation at that place, but they lack confirmation. It is believed, however, that the loss of property will be enormous.

FLOODS IN OTHER PLACES.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

ELMIRA, N. Y., June 3.—The damage in this City alone from the flood will exceed over $100,000. Trains on all railroads centering here, save the Northern Central, are beginning to move through slowly. Erie trains that reached here Friday night and Saturday are just going west on the Lackawanna tracks. The Northern Central is not open south of here. A dispatch received from Corning at noon says: The flood in this section was the greatest ever known. Probably 100 lives were imperiled here Saturday afternoon, the houses being surrounded by the angry current, but all were rescued by boats except one, a young boy named O'Brien who was drowned in his house. Almost all the country from Hornellsville to Corning was under water. The loss in Steuben County will probably exceed $1,000,000. The Fall Brook Coal Company is one of the greatest losers. They succeeded in getting a train out for Geneva, but south of Williamsport the condition is fearful. A telegram received this morning says that in eight miles from Stokesdale Junction, Pa., to Ansonia 13 drowned bodies have been found. It is believed that $1,000,000 will not cover the loss of the Fall Brook Company, and the worst is not known regarding the loss of life on the Pine Creek division.

SALTSBURG, Pa., June 3.—The body of John Stitt, of Blairsville, was recovered yesterday near here. The body of a girl about 13 years of age was found opposite Avonmore, and the body of a large woman, evidently a foreigner, was taken from the drift near Salina tunnel.

Financial Doings on Wall-Street To-Day—The Leading Closing Quotations.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

NEW-YORK, June 3.—The second day without ticker service opened on the Stock Exchange in a dismal manner. Selling orders were received from many sources and their execution caused sharp declines. There was no chance, however, to create a demand at the decline on account of lack of reports and before the lower range of prices could be published the room traders had absorbed the cheap stocks. Small commission houses are at the mercy of the room traders and large houses with telephone connections and few of them are able to execute any orders. In the Consolidated Exchange the effect of the movement was felt far more heavily than on Saturday. The chalkers continued to mark fictitious quotations on the board, but the members had discovered their unreliability and would no longer trade on them. As a result business there was at a complete standstill. It is understood arrangements have been completed by the Stock Exchange for a reorganization of the ticker service at once, but nothing will be done until the axe brigade, which is at work on Broad-street to-day, has severed the wires from all offices which were suspected of being leaky, and then new communication with the Exchange will be refused.

Saved His Cow but Lost His Life.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 3.—John O'Grady, a farmer at Blodgett's Mills, Cortland County, was killed by a Delaware, Lackawanna & Western passenger train at that place this morning. A cow belonging to O'Grady had strayed from its enclosure and was walking on the track. While trying to get it off the track O'Grady was struck by the locomotive and killed. The cow escaped.

I BELIEVE IT YET.

I.

There's some useful information that I got
from mother dear,
One evening when I went my girl to see;
She told me I had better be tasteful in my
dress,
If from bitter disappointment I'd be free.
She told that Marks Jacobs made suits the
handsomest;
That to his store was just the place to go,
That with his help I'd surely win the girl I
loved best:
I believed it, for my mother told me so

CHORUS.

She told me that a manly man should dress
in manly style,
And always like a gentleman should go;
That for this service I could trust Marks
Jacobs all the while;
I believed it, for my mother told me so.

II.

And so I went to Jacobs' store, 184 The Strand,
The next morning at the rising of the sun,
And picked me out the finest that this artist
had on hand,
And in just two days the suit complete
was done.
Then I hied me to the mansion where lived
my Katie Brown,
And her greeting was the sweetest man
can know;
She said I was the handsomest, the noblest
man in town;
I believed it, for my sweetheart told me so.

CHORUS.

She told me something better yet; she said
she would be mine,
That through this life with me she'd gladly go,
If I would wear Marks Jacobs' suits, so fitting,
neat and fine;
I believed it, for my Katie told me so.

NOTES ON NEWS OF THE DAY.

THOSE who were caught mangling the bodies of the dead at Johnstown and pilfering their jewelry and clothing were Hungarians. Our Congress has legislated the Chinese out, but no Chinaman could have perpetrated such ghoulish deeds. The Hungarian had better be told to go.

FIFTEEN THOUSAND strangers were in Johnstown yesterday to see the ruins. They became as hungry as the survivors of the wrecked homes themselves, and there was nothing to feed them. The Johnstown authorities have sent out appeals to strangers to keep away. They should send their money now, but postpone their visits.

YESTERDAY 2,095 European immigrants landed at Castle Garden. The United States has not room for such an influx, neither has it any use for the cast-off people of the old world cities. Unless something is done to restrict immigration and especially to assort our immigrants, the question will be taken up in politics and speedily absorb all other issues.

EVERYBODY in New York is pleased with Theodore Rosevelt's determination to enforce the civil service law. Reformers want it rigorously applied, while spoilsmen say that its enforcement will make both parties sick of it before 1892. Strange that Democratic administrations have never caught on to the idea that the way to get rid of an obnoxious law is to enforce it.

GOV. HILL has approved the bill forbidding the sale of cigars, tobacco or liquors to youngsters under 16. This is the first blow ever dealt by him to the liquor trade. He may find the sensation of doing the right thing on the subject so pleasant that he will be tempted to keep right on. All the world will take off its hat to David B. Hill when he signs the high license bill.

THE reservoir dam that broke above Johnstown was over 100 feet high and 90 feet thick at the base. This increased the size of a small natural lake from a mile to three miles in length and spread it over a narrow valley till it was a mile and a quarter wide. It was 300 feet above the level of Johnstown. The sudden emptying of this lake furnished only a portion of the water that destroyed the city.

TWENTY-THREE young colored men, stylishly dressed, were arrested yesterday afternoon for gathering on the sidewalk near St. Mark's colored church and ogling the dusky young ladies as they passed. The item is useful outside of New York, as showing that ogling is a misdemeanor and can be punished as such. The impudent or lecherous stare is offensive and insulting, regardless of "race, color or previous condition of servitude."

EDITOR A. C. T. Shubert of the Johnstown Free Press was among the drowned on Friday. Three of his sons had gone to Conemaugh the day before, and he with his wife and six other children visited a neighbor. As the water came the party were driven to the roof, where Shubert prepared a raft on which all embarked. A heavy timber flung across the raft by the water knocked Shubert off and he was lost. But his bark proved staunch, and all the rest of the party were rescued.

THE Democratic Albany Times praises Mr. Blaine's "brilliant achievement" in Berlin, and says that "the Samoan case was certainly conducted in a manner to gratify American pride." It thinks, however, that he will not have quite as easy work in dealing with England on the fisheries and Behring Sea questions, though it admits that "England of late years has exhibited anything but an aggressive spirit in dealing with first-class powers." Democratic opinion of Mr. Blaine appears to be improving.

THREE floods combined to work havoc at Johnstown. First, the river was filled to the top of its banks by the rains. Next came the bursting of the immense lumber boom on Stony Creek, which happened about one o'clock Friday afternoon, carrying down hundreds of thousands of logs, which swept away houses as though they were cards. Four hours later the dam of Conemaugh lake or reservoir broke, sending down a towering mass of water which swept over the remaining houses, burying them under fathoms of water or carrying them at once down stream. It was an awful conspiracy of the elements for ruin and death.

THE amount of beer manufactured in Albany by the five largest breweries is found by the Express to be from 105,000 to 115,000 barrels a year. Of three breweries whose total output is from 97,000 to 107,000 barrels about one third is sold out of the city; the other two, which turn out from 9,000 to 10,000 barrels dispose of their entire product in Albany. There is drank at the state capital, therefore, about 80,000 barrels a year. Albany's 100,000 people therefore drink 3,200,000 gallons of beer per year, or 32 gallons per head. This would give every man, woman and child nearly a pint bottle a day. What wonder that a good deal of our legislation is beery, or that the great Capitol sometimes gets in "a weaving way?"

THE floods from the late rains were terribly severe in many places. At Elmira Sunday night the water rose eighteen inches higher than ever before known. The Erie bridge was anchored by a heavy freight train upon it, and this formed a dam that forced back the water two feet deep into the streets. Yesterday afternoon two bodies floated down the river, and a roof to which three persons were clinging was said to have passed the city Saturday night. At Corning thirteen persons were reported drowned. In Andover a dozen bridges were carried away, at Wellsville both ends of the town were submerged, at Hornellsville several bridges are gone, and through the entire length of the Chemung valley the farms are under water. At Washington there was a flood so great in the Potomac that the streets in the southern part of the city were traversed in boats, while in Georgetown only the second stories of houses were visible. The floods were also very destructive in Virginia and throughout Western and Southern Pennsylvania. At Coburg, Canada, a cloudburst washed away all the bridges from Rice Lake to Lake Ontario, and the inmates of the houses had to be rescued in boats.

SCENES AND INCIDENTS.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 3.—The dark disaster of Friday with its attendant terrors, thrilled the universe, and drew two continents closer together in the bonds of sympathy that bind humanity. The midnight terrors of Ashtabula and Chatsworth evoked tears of pity from every fireside in Christendom; but the true story of Johnstown, when all is known, will stand solitary and alone as the acme of man's annihilation by the potent forces to which humanity is ever subject. The menacing clouds still hover darkly over the valley of death and the muttering thunder that ever and anon reverberates faintly in the distance seems the sardonic chuckle of the demon of destruction as he pursues his way to other lands and other homes. But the modern deluge has done its worst for Johnstown. The waters are rapidly subsiding, but the angry torrents still eddy around the City and the winged messenger of peace has not appeared to tell the pathetic tale of those who escaped the devastation of Black Friday. It is not a hackneyed utterance to say that no pen can adequately depict the horrors of this twin disaster holocaust and deluge, the deep emotions that well from the heart of every spectator find most eloquent expression in silence, the silence that bespeaks man's recognition of his subserviency to the elements and impotence to avert catastrophe. The insignificance of human life is only fully realized by those who witness such scenes as at Johnstown and Chatsworth and Ashtabula, and to those whose memory retains the picture of horror the decade experience cannot fail to be a fitting lesson. This morning opened up dark and dreary. Great drops of rain fell occasionally, and another storm seemed imminent. Every one feels thankful, however, that the weather still remains cool and that the gradual putrifaction of the hundreds of bodies that still line the streams and lie hidden under the miles of drift wood and debris is not unduly hastened. This morning the peculiar stench of decaying human flesh was plainly perceptible to the senses as one ascended the bank of Stony Creek for a half mile along the smoldering ruins of the wreck, and the most sceptical now conceive the worst and realize that hundreds, aye, perhaps thousands of bodies, lie charred and blackened beneath this great funeral pyre. Searchers wander wearily over the smoking mass, and as occasionally a sudden shout comes over the waters the patient watchers on the hill realize that another ghastly discovery has been added to that long list of revelations that chill every heart and draw tears to the eyes of all. From the banks many charred remains of victims of flames and flood are plainly visible to the naked eye, as the receding waters reluctantly give up their dead. Beneath almost every log or blackened beam a glistening skull or blanched remains of ribs or limbs can be seen. Since 10 o'clock last night the fire-engines have been busy. Water has been constantly playing on the burning ruins. At times the fire seems extinguished, but fitful flames suddenly break out afresh in some new quarter and again the water and flames wage fierce combat. The chief sensation of the morning was the united remonstrance of the physicians against the extinguishment of the burning wreck. They maintain that hundreds, if not thousands, of lifeless and decaying bodies lie beneath this mass of burning ruins, and "it would be better" they say, "to permit Nature's greatest scavenger—the flames—to pursue his work unmolested than to expose to further decay the horde of putrifying bodies that lie beneath this debris. There can be but one result. Days will elapse before the rubbish can be sufficiently removed to permit the recovery of these bodies, and long ere that every corpse will be a putrid mass yielding forth those frightful emanations of decaying human flesh that in a crowded community like this can give but one result, the dreadful typhus. Every battle field has demonstrated the necessity of the hasty interment of decaying bodies, and the stench that already arises is a forerunner of impending danger. Burn the wreck, burn the wreck."

A loud cry of indignation arose from the lips of the vast multitude, and the warnings of science were lost in the eager demands of those that sought the remains of those near and dear. The hose was again turned upon the hissing mass and rapidly the flames yielded to the supremacy of water. It is almost impossible to conceive the extent of these smoking ruins. An area of eight or 10 acres above the dam is covered to a depth of 40 feet with shattered houses, borne from the resident centre of Johnstown. In each of these houses it is estimated there were from one to 20 or 25 people. This is accepted as data upon which to estimate the number that perished on this spot, and if the data be correct the bodies that lie beneath these ruins must run well up into the hundreds if not the thousands. As yet there is no telling how many lives have been lost. Adjutant General Hastings stated this morning that he supposed there were at least 2,000 people under the burning debris, but the only way to find out how many lives were lost was to take a census of the people now living, and subtract that from the census before the flood. Said he: "In my opinion there are anywhere from 4,000 to 8,000 souls lost."

Senator Quay has contributed $500 to the flood sufferers. The four tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad below the stone bridge were filled yesterday with cars for two miles. Hundreds of men and women wandering from Morrellville to Johnstown. The sufferers last evening surrounded the freight cars fitted up to feed the hungry and shouted for bread. At first those in charge tossed the provisions into the crowd and an awful scramble followed. Children were trampled upon and women were unable to get food. Finally the police stopped the throwing of food and forced the crowd to pass in single file before the car doors. It was very cold here last night. Many poor women and children suffered. Councilman James Williams and Undertaker McNulty prepared 250 bodies yesterday for burial.

Hungarians attacked the cars standing on the tracks last night to seize clothing and provisions. One was arrested and the others were clubbed. The number of persons that searched the debris for plunder yesterday was surprising. Poorly clad men were seen carrying away fine ornamental clocks and rich bric-a-brac. Pianos by the dozen are scattered along the River but they are ruined. A man and his wife yesterday drew from a mass of rubbish a part of a cradle. They looked at it a moment in silence and then fell to weeping into each others arms. William Varner is a broken-hearted man. Of a family of 10 five are missing.

Hungarians and negroes are causing the most trouble. All day yesterday they filled up with whiskey taken from the River Saturday and were in a dangerous mood. The negroes in Johnstown were selling sacks of flour and dress goods for whiskey. They drove a wagon to the rear of a wrecked store and loaded it with goods and were hauling it away when stopped. A Deputy Sheriff shot a negro who was robbing a store. The wound was not serious and the man escaped. The militia is needed badly.

Only meagre details of the buildings swept away can be conveyed at this time. In the Second Ward there were 1,800 houses now there are seven standing. There are seven wards in the City and all are in about the same condition.

Charles Micer and wife, of Braddock, came here yesterday to look for their parents. It has been heard that Mr. and Mrs. Micer, Senior, were drowned with three daughters and a son. About a dozen printers were driven by the flood to the roof of their boarding house in Kernville. They were kept there 15 hours and were half frozen when taken off. One hundred and eighty bodies had been embalmed yesterday at Nineveh, and there is a report that 200 more have been discovered half buried in the mud on an Island between New-Florence and the place named. Hundreds of homeless people slept last night on the hillsides under tents sent from Pittsburg and other places. The Pennsylvania Railroad has got a track through to the City and provisions enough to meet all immediate wants have arrived. Those people who were not swept away or disabled are working earnestly for the revival of the stricken City, but it will take months of work to come anywhere near repairing the fearful damage. While it is about certain that the list of the lost will never be made complete, the supply of coffins sent in from Pittsburg and other points is so great that the Relief Committee has telegraphed that no more must be sent until ordered. All day yesterday men, women and children plodded about the desolate waste looking in vain to locate the boundaries of their former homes. Nothing but a wide expanse of mud, ornamented here and there with heaps of drift wood, remained for their contemplation. There were many pathetic scenes. Mrs. Fenn, who was half crazed with grief, said: "My husband and seven little children have been swept down with the flood and I am left alone. We were driven by the flood into the garret, but the water followed us there. Inch by inch it kept rising until our heads were crushing against the roof. I raised a window and one by one placed my darlings on some drift wood, trusting to the Great Creator. As I liberated the last one, my little boy, he looked at me and said: 'Mamma, you always told me that the Lord would care for me. Will He look after me now?' I saw him drift away with his loving face turned toward me, and with a prayer on my lips for his deliverance he passed from sight forever. The next moment the roof crashed in and I floated outside to be rescued 15 hours later from the roof of a house in Kernville."

Battery B, of Pittsburg, arrived in this City this morning, but was sent home immediately by General Hastings, who stated afterwards that the sending down of soldiers was like waving a red flag and it would only tend to create trouble. Everything was quiet here, and it was an insult to the citizens of Johnstown to send soldiers here at present. The Washington Infantry came in over the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and when Captain Shannon reported to Adjutant-General Hastings that gentleman said there was no need for soldiers' aid. If any were needed he would order out the State Guards. He had nothing to do with independent organizations. A train of five cars came in from Cumberland, Md., this morning loaded with provisions and 30 men to help clear up the debris. About 60 coffins containing bodies of unknown people are piled up on the platform at the general undertaking rooms. Up till to-day General Hastings had his undertakers on the east side of the River, but this morning he came over to the burning debris followed by about 125 men carrying coffins. He started to work immediately and has ordered men from Philadelphia, Harrisburg and other eastern towns to do laboring work. The stealing by Hungarians at Cambria City and points along the railroad has almost ceased. The report of several lynchings and the drowning of two Italians while being pursued by citizens yesterday put a damper on pilfering for a time. While Deputy Sheriff Rose was patrolling the River bank yesterday he found two Hungarians attempting to rob bodies, and at once gave chase. He found two taking to the woods, and pulled out a pistol and shot twice, wounding both men badly.

It has been necessary to establish the headquarters of the Associated Press in a building which is being used as one of the morgues, and its telegraph operators are sending the news to the world while surrounded by the bodies of the dead.

The Sheriff has taken charge of Johnstown and armed men are this morning patrolling the City. The people who have property in the limits are permitted to enter the City, if they are known, but otherwise it is impossible to get into the town. This regulation seems harsh but it is a necessity. The Relief Committee from Ohio are pitching their tents on the hillside. They have 900 tents and they are being utilized as fast as erected. For the first time since the flood men have been put to work on the debris at the bridge, and are hunting for the bodies that have not been burned beyond recognition. This morning a man, woman and child were taken from the ruins. The child was clasped in the arms of the woman, and the trio were evidently husband, wife and child. It is a most distressing sight to see the relatives of people who are supposed to be lost standing around watching every body as it is pulled out.

The relief train from Pittsburg over the Baltimore & Ohio Road reached here at 2 o'clock this morning. At each town along the line contributions were made to the already well-filled cars of provisions. When Johnstown was reached the train had 10 loaded cars. Every one on the train was anxious to assist in the work of rescue. A party was made up and started for the lower part of the town. The path was covered with trees, rocks, fences, parts of houses and every imaginable thing. Bureaus, beds, side-boards and furniture of all kinds were strewn from hill to hill. The whole valley of Stony Creek for miles up from Johnstown is filled with debris of all kinds. The line of the Baltimore & Ohio has been cleared of debris and it is piled up on each side as high as the tops of the cars.

From the Pennsylvania Railroad to Main-street there is nothing standing but the stone church and the large brick school-house. The Mansion House is gone and over 100 people were lost there. From the Baltimore & Ohio depot you can see for blocks in every direction and between the depot and the point there is standing only a part of the Morrell block and two small brick offices that were protected by the Morrell building. The town was at rest early in the morning. Every one was thoroughly exhausted with the terrible strain and the work of the last two days and nights. The town is under martial law, and every one who goes about the place is challenged and required to give an account of himself. The water has subsided to a great extent and the streets in the main part of the town are free from water. The falling water has laid bare the terrible work of the flood, and the full extent of the disaster is only being ascertained now. The streets are one sickening, foul-smelling mass of wood and debris and the work of searching for bodies has only fairly began. The work of identifying the dead goes on very slowly, and comparatively few so far have been identified. Among those identified to-day were Muus Wolf and wife, M. Goldher, a merchant on Main-street, whose body was sent to Baltimore accompanied by his daughter; Mrs. J. Katerstein and son, who were visiting Mr. Bohem, the father of Mrs. Katerstein. They were standing in Bohem's store on Main-street when the flood came. The Hotel Holbert has been entirely washed away and 72 persons perished in the wreck. Behind the Morrell property lies a locomotive which was carried over the bridge and swept up by the flood.

Frank McDonald, a railroad conductor, was at the Pennsylvania depot when the deluge came. He said: "When I first saw the flood it was 30 feet high and gradually rose to 40. Fifteen minutes before the flood came Doughty, the Railroad agent, read me a telegram he had just received saying the South Fork dam had broken. As soon as he heard this the people in the station, numbering 600, made a rush for a hill. I certainly think I saw 1,000 bodies go over the bridge. The first house that came down struck the bridge and at once took fire, and as fast as the others came down they were consumed. I believe I am safe in saying I saw 1,000 bodies burn. I have no idea that had the bridge been blown up the loss of life would have been any less. They would have floated a little further with the same certain death. Then, again, it was impossible for anyone to have reached the bridge to blow it up, for the waters came so fast no one could have done it. I saw 15 to 18 bodies go over the bridge at the same time." From under the large brick school house 124 bodies were taken last night and to-day, and in every corner and place the bodies are being found and buried as fast as possible. The necessity for speedy burial is becoming manifest, and the stench arising from the bodies is sickening. A number of bodies have been found with bullet-holes in them, showing that suicide was resorted to. Up to this morning people leaving here who lost whole families and parts of families hardly seemed to realize what a dreadful calamity had befallen them. However, this morning, people are getting to understand the situation and agony is stamped on the faces of every one, and it is truly a city of mourning. Ten bodies were taken out of the debris at 9:20 this morning. There was nothing to identify them, as they were burned almost to a crisp.

Three hundred bodies have been discovered in the sand at Kernville, near the mouth of Sandy Creek.

A WARNING HORSEMAN.

A nameless Paul Revere lies somewhere among the nameless dead. Who he is may never be known, but his ride will be famous in local history. Mounted on a big bay horse he came riding down the pike which passes through Conemaugh to Johnstown shouting: "Run for your lives to the hills," "Run to the hills." The people crowded out of their houses along the thickly settled street awe-struck and wondering. Nobody knew the man and some believed he was a maniac and laughed. At a quick pace he rode and shrilly rang out his awful cry. In a few moments, however, there came a cloud of ruin down the broad streets, down the narrow alleys, grinding, twisting, hurling, overturning, crashing, annihilating the weak and the strong. It was the charge of the flood wearing its coronet of ruin and devastation, which grew at every instant of its progress.

From 30 to 40 feet high was this sea and it traveled with terrible swiftness. On and on raced the rider and on and on rushed the waves. Dozens of people took heed of the warning and ran up to the hills. Just as the rider turned across the railroad bridge the mighty wave fell upon him and horse, rider and bridge all went out into choas together. A few feet further on several cars of the Pennsylvania Railroad train from Pittsburg were caught up and hurled into the cauldron. The dam broke in the center at 3 o'clock, Friday afternoon, and at 4 o'clock it was dry. The great body of water passed out in one hour. Messrs. Park and VanBuren, who are building a new drainage system at the lake, tried to arrest the disaster by digging a sluice-way on one side to ease the pressure on the dam. They had about 40 men at work and did all they could without avail. The water passed over the dam about a foot above its top, beginning at about 2:30 o'clock. Whatever happened in the way of a cloud-burst took place during the night. There had been but little rain up to dark. When the workmen awoke in the morning the lake was very full and was rising a foot an hour. It kept on rising until at 2 o'clock when it first began breaking over the dam and undermining it. Men were sent three or four times during the day to warn people below of their danger. When the final break came, at 3 o'clock, there was a sound like tremendous and continued peals of thunder. Trees, rocks and earth shot up into mid-air in great columns, and then the waves started down the ravine. A farmer who escaped said the water did not come down like a wave, but jumped on his house and beat it to fragments in an instant. He was safe on the hillside, but his wife and two children were killed. At present the lake looks like the crater of an extinct volcano or a huge mud-puddle with stumps of trees and rocks scattered over it. There is a small stream of muddy water running through the centre of the lake side. The dam was 70 feet high and the break is about 200 feet wide and there is but a small poriton of the dam left on either side. No damage was done to any of the buildings belonging to the Club. The whole South Fork is swept with not a tree standing. There are but one or two small streams showing here and there in the lake. Many of the workmen carried off baskets full of fish which they caught in the mud. The rescuing parties who are at work on the mass of unburned wreckage in the River above the stone bridge are finding bodies and fragments of bodies at the rate of from 10 to 15 an hour. In other parts of the submerged districts many bodies are being taken out. A careful estimate at this time of the bodies recovered everywhere puts it at from 700 to 800. Three hundred bodies were laying on the sand at Kernville at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The sight was one of most distressing ever witnessed. A crowd of 500 are gathered around endeavoring to find the bodies of friends or relatives. There were no coffins there and the bodies had to be laid on the ground. Five hundred coffins are now on the way there and the undertakers have sent for 500 additional ones. Kernville from now on will be the place where most of the bodies will be found. The water has fallen so much that it is possible to get at the bodies, but all of them have to be dug out of the sand. It is believed that most of the bodies that will be found at Kernville are under a large pile of debris about an acre in length. This is where most of the buildings drifted, and it is natural to suppose the bodies floated with them. A cold wave has struck the town and the people are badly in need of clothing. It is almost impossible to get anything to eat.

LOSS 12,000 TO 15,000.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 3.—General Hastings has telegraphed the following to the Manager of the Postal Telegraph Company in this City: "Better inform Governor Beaver that this morning's reports give the number lost at Johnstown at between 12,000 and 15,000. The greatest disorder prevails. The place is infested with thieves and vandals, who are robbing the dead and appropriating everything they can lay their hands on. These people are eating almost everything in the shape of provisions sent here for the flood sufferers."

RELIEF FOR THE SUFFERERS.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

TROY, N. Y., June 3.—Subscriptions exceeding $1,500 for relief of the Pennsylvania flood sufferers were received to-day by the Troy Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 3.—A relief train on the Western New-York & Pennsylvania Railroad will leave here for Pittsburg to-night with contributions of food, clothing, etc., for the flood sufferers.

A meeting of citizens was held at the Mayor's office to-day to devise means for the aid of the flood sufferers. The Mayor will send $1,000 by telegraph this afternoon. A committee was appointed to raise funds. The Merchants Exchange also started a relief fund this morning.

OPENING COMMUNICATION.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

EASTON, Pa., June 3.—The Lehigh Valley tracks from New-York to Buffalo, via Lyons, are open and the road is running through freight. The Lehigh River here is over its banks. Canal boats cannot run and the cotton and wire mills in South-Easton could not start to-day.

PHILADELPHIA, June 3.—The Pennsylvania main line is still closed to travel west of Lancaster. The line to Washington was opened shortly before midnight. One hundred and sixty car-loads of heavy bridge timber have been started over the road for points where bridges have been damaged. The Company has purchased 4,000,000 feet of heavy timber.

The best information that can be obtained to-day at the Pennsylvania Railroad office in this City is to the effect that a route will be patched up to Altoona within 36 hours, thus giving the 800 or more east and west-bound passengers laid up at that place an opportunity to get away from there. It is not believed passengers can be conveyed from Harrisburg to Pittsburg over the main line inside of a week or 10 days. No direct intelligence of any sort has been received from Lock Haven since 9 o'clock Friday night. The dispatch then received stated that the lumber boom had broken and the town was flooded. The wildest kind of rumors are received in regard to the situation at that place, but they lack confirmation. It is believed, however, that the loss of property will be enormous.

FLOODS IN OTHER PLACES.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

ELMIRA, N. Y., June 3.—The damage in this City alone from the flood will exceed over $100,000. Trains on all railroads centering here, save the Northern Central, are beginning to move through slowly. Erie trains that reached here Friday night and Saturday are just going west on the Lackawanna tracks. The Northern Central is not open south of here. A dispatch received from Corning at noon says: The flood in this section was the greatest ever known. Probably 100 lives were imperiled here Saturday afternoon, the houses being surrounded by the angry current, but all were rescued by boats except one, a young boy named O'Brien who was drowned in his house. Almost all the country from Hornellsville to Corning was under water. The loss in Steuben County will probably exceed $1,000,000. The Fall Brook Coal Company is one of the greatest losers. They succeeded in getting a train out for Geneva, but south of Williamsport the condition is fearful. A telegram received this morning says that in eight miles from Stokesdale Junction, Pa., to Ansonia 13 drowned bodies have been found. It is believed that $1,000,000 will not cover the loss of the Fall Brook Company, and the worst is not known regarding the loss of life on the Pine Creek division.

SALTSBURG, Pa., June 3.—The body of John Stitt, of Blairsville, was recovered yesterday near here. The body of a girl about 13 years of age was found opposite Avonmore, and the body of a large woman, evidently a foreigner, was taken from the drift near Salina tunnel.

NEW-YORK, June 3.—The second day without ticker service opened on the Stock Exchange in a dismal manner. Selling orders were received from many sources and their execution caused sharp declines. There was no chance, however, to create a demand at the decline on account of lack of reports and before the lower range of prices could be published the room traders had absorbed the cheap stocks. Small commission houses are at the mercy of the room traders and large houses with telephone connections and few of them are able to execute any orders. In the Consolidated Exchange the effect of the movement was felt far more heavily than on Saturday. The chalkers continued to mark fictitious quotations on the board, but the members had discovered their unreliability and would no longer trade on them. As a result business there was at a complete standstill. It is understood arrangements have been completed by the Stock Exchange for a reorganization of the ticker service at once, but nothing will be done until the axe brigade, which is at work on Broad-street to-day, has severed the wires from all offices which were suspected of being leaky, and then new communication with the Exchange will be refused.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 3.—John O'Grady, a farmer at Blodgett's Mills, Cortland County, was killed by a Delaware, Lackawanna & Western passenger train at that place this morning. A cow belonging to O'Grady had strayed from its enclosure and was walking on the track. While trying to get it off the track O'Grady was struck by the locomotive and killed. The cow escaped.

I BELIEVE IT YET.

I.

There's some useful information that I got from mother dear,
One evening when I went my girl to see;
She told me I had better be tasteful in my dress,
If from bitter disappointment I'd be free.
She told that Marks Jacobs made suits the handsomest;
That to his store was just the place to go,
That with his help I'd surely win the girl I loved best:
I believed it, for my mother told me so

CHORUS.

She told me that a manly man should dress in manly style,
And always like a gentleman should go;
That for this service I could trust Marks Jacobs all the while:
I believed it, for my mother told me so.

II.

And so I went to Jacobs' store, 184 The Strand,
The next morning at the rising of the sun,
And picked me out the finest that this artist had on hand,
And in just two days the suit complete was done.
Then I hied me to the mansion where lived my Katie Brown,
And her greeting was the sweetest man can know;
She said I was the handsomest, the noblest man in town;
I believed it, for my sweetheart told me so.

CHORUS.

She told me something better yet; she said she would be mine,
That through this life with me she'd gladly go,
If I would wear Marks Jacobs' suits, so fitting, neat and fine;
I believed it, for my Katie told me so.

WASHINGTON, June 3. — Indications for Tuesday: Fair weather, followed by light rains, slightly warmer.

THE NUMBERLESS DEAD.

Every fresh account adds to the horror of the Johnstown calamity. The first estimate of two hundred dead was the utmost that men dared compute. This figure carried it beyond the worst preceding flood disaster in the United States, and there all were fain to stop. But as the situation has since been described so small a number of lost would have been due to miracles of divine mercy. The city that has been swept away contained 30,000 people, instead of from 1,000 to 5,000 as first estimated. The valley is narrow and deep and filled with factories, closely around which, as is their custom, the working people had built their homes, chiefly within the reach of the raging waters. Stores, offices and places of business were all down in the valley, and through it also the great railroads ran and had their depots. There were smaller towns further down, and these also became the prey of the torrent, the perpendicular depth of which was twenty feet above the ordinary stream. When the rushing tide struck great buildings it not only crushed them as if they had been smitten by a mountain avalanche, but it ploughed up their very foundations and left the ground where they stood without sign or trace of former occupation. Frame dwellings by the hundred were gathered into one great mass and rested against a bridge further down, and there with their clinging freight of humanity were set on fire, and even in this awful manner hundreds and possibly thousands perished who believed themselves to be above the reach of the waters. It is not strange, therefore that the estimate of the dead went up in one day to 6,000, and in another day to 10,000. They are numberless and can never be counted. They have been blotted out as though they had never been, and their crushed remains have been borne far down the awful current, to be buried deeply beneath the ruins and the silt, or swept out into the wide rivers below. And the great majority of these have left nobody behind to tell of their fate. Not only are their families all gone, but their neighbors, those who knew them, are dead also. In an industrial town like Johnstown are many people who have few or no acquaintances. It is a shifting population, many changing quickly from town to town, and others who are recent immigrants from foreign countries. In the great mass of the dead they will never be identified, and out of the greater mass of surviving humanity they can never be missed.

It is impossible for one not on the spot to take in the magnitude and the appalling nature of this great calamity. The death record is equal to that of some of the greatest battles of the late war. But after these battles our armies could gather up and count and name their dead, bury them tenderly, and those who mourned them at home found solace in their heroism and the reflection that the cause was worth the sacrifice. At Johnstown the great funeral procession will move on for weeks, and those who should have been mourners will follow in hearses, their eyes too closed forever. Week after week and month after month the river will continue to give up its nameless and half-buried dead. And after life's fitful fever we shall know that they sleep well, for the great cemetery that is to receive them has been laid on the mountain side, above the reach of Pennsylvania's rivers, even if all were poured into one.

Fearful destitution is reported at Johnstown, for the people are not all dead, and the rescued, bereft of home and all the necessaries of life, are in danger of perishing. Gov. Hill has promptly issued a proclamation calling upon the great state of New York to contribute of its wealth to comfort the suffering and aid in restoring the prosperity of the desolated towns. They are temporarily blotted out, but they must grow again, and in their first attempts to rise they will need much assistance. The present is not the time to speculate upon the causes of the calamity or censure the carelessness that caused it, whether of those who owned the great reservoir above the city or those who lived below it. Thorough investigation under official authority will be able to locate the responsibility in due time. Public duty can find enough to engage its efforts in gathering up the dead, ministering to the living, and wiping out the awful desolation that has come upon one of the happiest and most prosperous valleys of Pennsylvania.

TWO NEGATIVES DESTROY ONE ANOTHER.

A few days ago the Syracuse Standard copied the following from the Wine and Spirit Gazette, and endorsed it by putting over it the heading, "An Undeniable Fact:"

No well-informed man will at this time seriously deny that Harrison does not owe his election to the most shameless and corrupt use of money.

Thereupon the Troy Press uttered an ejaculation of delighted surprise, and declared that "it is unusual for a party journal to administer such a rebuke to corruption within its own ranks." And it calls upon other Republican journals to copy the Standard's virtuous example.

We think the joke is on the Press. Its editor has forgotten the old rule in his school grammar that "two negatives destroy one another and are equivalent to an affirmative." Here are two negatives: "No well informed man will deny that Harrison does not owe his election," etc. The second negative may have been unintended in the Gazette, but the Standard saw the point and used it for all it was worth. The Press did not see it, and hence put itself in a position to be laughed at.

NO PENALTIES IN THE CONSTITUTION.

Now here is the Rochester Union and Advertiser rising in great majesty to inform the people that the proposed prohibition amendment to the constitution is a fraud because it does not provide penalties for the violation of the provision. We quote in part:

The Republican amendment proposes, not that the manufacture shall be made a crime, but that the manufacture for sale, or the selling or keeping for sale as a beverage, shall not be carried on by any person! And it does not make the manufacture for sale, or the selling or keeping for sale as a beverage, a crime, or even require the Legislature to make and treat either as a crime, but simply says the Legislature shall by law prescribe regulations for the enforcement of the article and provide penalties for its violation!

Whew! But does the constitution provide penalties for murder, for burglary, for forgery, or any other act which is recognized as a crime by common law? Read the constitution and see. There is really no occasion for taking all the criminal laws of the state into the constitution. The Legislature must prescribe the penalties as it does in every other case of violating the law, and here is its authority in the first section of the proposed amendment:

Section 1. No person shall manufacture for sale, or sell or keep for sale, as a beverage, any intoxicating liquors, whether brewed, fermented or distilled. The Legislature shall by law prescribe regulations for the enforcement of this article, and shall provide suitable penalties for its violation.

The Union is afraid that if the amendment is adopted the Legislature will fail to provide for its enforcement. But the same people whose votes are to adopt the amendment if it is adopted, will have the election of members of the Legislature. They will see to it that laws are made to set the amendment in operation. The Union's outcry suggests that it is scared. There is indeed danger, for if the Governor keeps on vetoing high license bills the people will vote for prohibition as the next best thing. And if the amendment is adopted just as it stands, our Democratic friends will get all the prohibition they want Wait and see.

THE GHOULS AT WORK.

Lynch Law for Those Who Plundered the Dead.

[Johnstown Correspondence N. Y. Tribune.]

Last night a party of thirteen Hungarians were noticed stealthily picking their way along the banks of the Conemaugh toward Sang Hollow. Suspicious of their purpose, several farmers armed themselves and started in pursuit. Soon their horrible fears were realized. The Hungarians were out for plunder. Lying upon the shore they came upon the dead and mangled body of a woman, upon whose person there were a number of trinkets of jewelry and two diamond rings. In their eagerness to secure the plunder the Hungarians got into a squabble, during which one of the number severed the finger upon which were the rings and started on a run with his fearful prize. The revolting nature of the deed so wrought upon the pursuing farmers, who by this time were close at hand, that they gave immediate chase. Some of the Hungarians showed fight, but, being outnumbered, were compelled to flee for their lives. Nine of the brutes escaped, but four were literally driven into the surging river to their death. The thief who took the rings was among the number of the involuntary suicides.

At 8:30 o'clock this morning an old railroader, who had walked from Sang Hollow, stepped up to a number of men who were on the platform station at Curranville, and said: "Gentlemen, had I a shotgun with me half an hour ago, I would now be a murderer, yet with no fear of ever having to suffer for my crime. Two miles below here I watched three men going along the banks, stealing the jewels from the bodies of the dead wives and daughters of men who have been robbed of all they hold dear on earth."

He had no sooner finished the last sentence than five burly men, with looks of terrible determination written on their faces, were on their way to the scene of plunder, one with a coil of rope over his shoulder and another with a revolver in his hand. In twenty minutes, so it is stated, they had overtaken two of their victims, who were then in the act of cutting pieces from the cars and fingers from the hands of the bodies of two dead women. With revolver levelled at the scoundrels, the leader of the posse shouted:

"Throw up your hands or I'll blow your heads off."

With blanched faces and trembling forms, they obeyed the order and begged for mercy. They were searched, and, as their pockets were emptied of their ghastly finds, the indignation of the crowd intensified, and when a bloody finger of an infant encircled with two tiny gold rings was found among the plunder in the leader's pocket, a cry went up. "Lynch them! Lynch them!" Without a moment's delay ropes were thrown around their necks and they were dangling to the limbs of a tree, in the branches of which an hour before were entangled the bodies of a dead father and son. After half an hour the ropes were cut and the bodies lowered and carried to a pile of rocks in the forest on the hill above. It is hinted that an Allegheny county official was one of the most prominent in this justifiable homicide.

One miserable wretch who was caught in the act of mutilating a body was chased by a crowd of citizens, and when captured was promptly strung up to a telegraph pole. A company of officers rescued him before he was dead, much to the disgust of many reputable people, whose feelings had been outraged by the treatment of their deceased relations. Shortly after midnight an attempt was made to rob the First National Bank, which, with the exception of the vaults, had been destroyed. The plunderers were discovered by the citizens' patrol, which had been established during the night, and a lively chase ensued. A number of the thieves —six, it is said—were shot. It is not known whether they were killed or not, as their bodies would have been washed away almost immediately if such had been the case.

PICTURES OF THE FLOOD.

As Seen From the Halted Trains—One who Saw the Break.

[From letters to the New York Sun.]

A number of travelers from the West who found the Pennsylvania Railroad line blocked, and turned back at Pittsburg or at points up the Conemaugh valley, got here by New York Central trains yesterday at noon and at 8:50 P. M. One of these passengers, Mr. F. C. Garrison, a commercial traveler, of this city, got as far up the valley as Latrobe, twelve miles below Johnstown.

"Our train passed through Pittsburg on Friday night," he said to a Sun reporter, "and got as far as Latrobe on Saturday morning. Here we were stopped by the flood. We were right beside the stream. The scene was an awful one. The river, which is usually about as wide as Broadway, was only three times as wide, but it was twenty feet above its usual level, the valley was so narrow there. It rushed down the valley, breaking here and there into great waves and swirling eddies. It reminded me of Hell Gate when the tide is in. There was wreckage all along the torrent as far as we could see. Parts of houses and barns were rushed into great shifting rafts with trees and logs, and every little way the dead body of some unfortunate. Everything that is associated with home or farm life was in the stream. There were dead animals by the hundred, pigs, cows, sheep, horses, and dogs with their kennels. As the wreckage went down the winding valley it was driven from one shore to the other. It was only at the sharp bends that there was any chance for help. No boat could live in the flood. The banks were lined for miles with persons anxious to help, but unable to do anything.

"The most heartrending sight was to see little children go by dead among the pieces of their wrecked homes. There were men and women, too, but how many I saw I cannot tell. After the sight of the first few corpses a horror overcame us, and we imagined a body in every white object that was thrown into sight by the heaving currents.

"Our train returned to Pittsburg by noon. The scene was the same all along the river, and we followed it for miles. The first of the wreckage reached Pittsburg at about the same time we got there. Standing on a bridge there, I saw the corpse of a woman carried by. It was caught amid a mass of trees and broken stuff that was packed together like a raft. Her long hair was undone, and spread in a tangle over the wreckage. She was entirely naked.'

Mr. Crouse, proprietor of the South Fork Fishing Club Hotel, came to Johnstown this afternoon. He says that when the dam of Conemaugh Lake broke the water seemed to leap, hardly touching the ground. It bounded down the valley, crashing and roaring, carrying everything before it. For a mile its front seemed like a solid wall twenty feet high. The warning given the stricken city was sent from South Fork village by Freight Agent Dechert. When the great wall that held the body of water began to crumble at the top, he sent a message begging the people of Johnstown for God's sake to take to the hills. He reports no serious accidents at South Fork. Richard Davis ran to Prospect Hill when the water began to rise. As to Mr. Dechert's warning, he says just such messages have been sent down at each flood since the lake was made. The warning so often proved unnecessary that little attention was paid to it this time.

"I cannot describe the mad rush," he said. "At first it looked like dust. That must have been the spray. I could see houses going down before it like a child's play blocks set on edge in a row. As it came nearer I could see houses totter for a moment, then rise, and the next moment be crushed like egg shells against each other."

ONE MOTHER'S STORY.

Husband and Seven Children Swept Away—The Last Good-Bye.

[Johnstown Correspondence New York Sun.]

An utterly wretched woman named Mrs. Fenn stood by a muddy pool of water trying to find some trace of a once happy home. She was half crazed with grief and her eyes were red and swollen. As the writer stepped to her side, she raised her pale and haggard face and remarked:

"They are all gone. Oh, God, be merciful to them. My husband and my seven dear little children have been swept down with the flood and I am left alone. We were driven by the awful flood into the garret, but the water followed us there. Inch by inch it kept rising until our heads were crushing against the roof. It was death to remain. So I raised a window and one by one placed my darlings on some driftwood, trusting to the great Creator. As I liberated the last one, my sweet little boy, he looked at me and said: 'Mamma, you always told me that the Lord would care for me; will He look after me now?' I saw him drift away, with his loving face turned toward me, and, with a prayer on my lips for his deliverance, he passed from sight forever. The next moment the roof crashed in, and I floated outside, to be rescued fifteen hours later from the roof of a house in Kernville. If I could only find one of my darlings I could bow to the will of God, but they are all gone. I have lost everything on earth now but my life, and I will return to my old Virginia home and lay me down for my last great sleep."

THE NUMBERLESS DEAD.

Every fresh account adds to the horror of the Johnstown calamity. The first estimate of two hundred dead was the utmost that men dared compute. This figure carried it beyond the worst preceding flood disaster in the United States, and there all were fain to stop. But as the situation has since been described so small a number of lost would have been due to miracles of divine mercy. The city that has been swept away contained 30,000 people, instead of from 1,000 to 5,000 as first estimated. The valley is narrow and deep and filled with factories, closely around which, as is their custom, the working people had built their homes, chiefly within the reach of the raging waters. Stores, offices and places of business were all down in the valley, and through it also the great railroads ran and had their depots. There were smaller towns further down, and these also became the prey of the torrent, the perpendicular depth of which was twenty feet above the ordinary stream. When the rushing tide struck great buildings it not only crushed them as if they had been smitten by a mountain avalanche, but it ploughed up their very foundations and left the ground where they stood without sign or trace of former occupation. Frame dwellings by the hundred were gathered into one great mass and rested against a bridge further down, and there with their clinging freight of humanity were set on fire, and even in this awful manner hundreds and possibly thousands perished who believed themselves to be above the reach of the waters. It is not strange, therefore that the estimate of the dead went up in one day to 6,000, and in another day to 10,000. They are numberless and can never be counted. They have been blotted out as though they had never been, and their crushed remains have been borne far down the awful current, to be buried deeply beneath the ruins and the silt, or swept out into the wide rivers below. And the great majority of these have left nobody behind to tell of their fate. Not only are their families all gone, but their neighbors, those who knew them, are dead also. In an industrial town like Johnstown are many people who have few or no acquaintances. It is a shifting population, many changing quickly from town to town, and others who are recent immigrants from foreign countries. In the great mass of the dead they will never be identified, and out of the greater mass of surviving humanity they can never be missed.

It is impossible for one not on the spot to take in the magnitude and the appalling nature of this great calamity. The death record is equal to that of some of the greatest battles of the late war. But after these battles our armies could gather up and count and name their dead, bury them tenderly, and those who mourned them at home found solace in their heroism and the reflection that the cause was worth the sacrifice. At Johnstown the great funeral procession will move on for weeks, and those who should have been mourners will follow in hearses, their eyes too closed forever. Week after week and month after month the river will continue to give up its nameless and half-buried dead. And after life's fitful fever we shall know that they sleep well, for the great cemetery that is to receive them has been laid on the mountain side, above the reach of Pennsylvania's rivers, even if all were poured into one.

Fearful destitution is reported at Johnstown, for the people are not all dead, and the rescued, bereft of home and all the necessaries of life, are in danger of perishing. Gov. Hill has promptly issued a proclamation calling upon the great state of New York to contribute of its wealth to comfort the suffering and aid in restoring the prosperity of the desolated towns. They are temporarily blotted out, but they must grow again, and in their first attempts to rise they will need much assistance. The present is not the time to speculate upon the causes of the calamity or censure the carelessness that caused it, whether of those who owned the great reservoir above the city or those who lived below it. Thorough investigation under official authority will be able to locate the responsibility in due time. Public duty can find enough to engage its efforts in gathering up the dead, ministering to the living, and wiping out the awful desolation that has come upon one of the happiest and most prosperous valleys of Pennsylvania.

TWO NEGATIVES DESTROY ONE ANOTHER.

A few days ago the Syracuse Standard copied the following from the Wine and Spirit Gazette, and endorsed it by putting over it the heading, "An Undeniable Fact:"

No well-informed man will at this time seriously deny that Harrison does not owe his election to the most shameless and corrupt use of money.

Thereupon the Troy Press uttered an ejaculation of delighted surprise, and declared that "it is unusual for a party journal to administer such a rebuke to corruption within its own ranks." And it calls upon other Republican journals to copy the Standard's virtuous example.

We think the joke is on the Press. Its editor has forgotten the old rule in his school grammar that "two negatives destroy one another and are equivalent to an affirmative." Here are two negatives: "No well informed man will deny that Harrison does not owe his election," etc. The second negative may have been unintended in the Gazette, but the Standard saw the point and used it for all it was worth. The Press did not see it, and hence put itself in a position to be laughed at.

NO PENALTIES IN THE CONSTITUTION.

Now here is the Rochester Union and Advertiser rising in great majesty to inform the people that the proposed prohibition amendment to the constitution is a fraud because it does not provide penalties for the violation of the provision. We quote in part:

The Republican amendment proposes, not that the manufacture shall be made a crime, but that the manufacture for sale, or the selling or keeping for sale as a beverage, shall not be carried on by any person! And it does not make the manufacture for sale, or the selling or keeping for sale as a beverage, a crime, or even require the Legislature to make and treat either as a crime, but simply says the Legislature shall by law prescribe regulations for the enforcement of the article and provide penalties for its violation!

Whew! But does the constitution provide penalties for murder, for burglary, for forgery, or any other act which is recognized as a crime by common law? Read the constitution and see. There is really no occasion for taking all the criminal laws of the state into the constitution. The Legislature must prescribe the penalties as it does in every other case of violating the law, and here is its authority in the first section of the proposed amendment:

Section 1. No person shall manufacture for sale, or sell or keep for sale, as a beverage, any intoxicating liquors, whether brewed, fermented or distilled. The Legislature shall by law prescribe regulations for the enforcement of this article, and shall provide suitable penalties for its violation.

The Union is afraid that if the amendment is adopted the Legislature will fail to provide for its enforcement. But the same people whose votes are to adopt the amendment if it is adopted, will have the election of members of the Legislature. They will see to it that laws are made to set the amendment in operation. The Union's outcry suggests that it is scared. There is indeed danger, for if the Governor keeps on vetoing high license bills the people will vote for prohibition as the next best thing. And if the amendment is adopted just as it stands, our Democratic friends will get all the prohibition they want Wait and see.

THE GHOULS AT WORK.

Lynch Law for Those Who Plundered the Dead.

[Johnstown Correspondence N. Y. Tribune.]

Last night a party of thirteen Hungarians were noticed stealthily picking their way along the banks of the Conemaugh toward Sang Hollow. Suspicious of their purpose, several farmers armed themselves and started in pursuit. Soon their horrible fears were realized. The Hungarians were out for plunder. Lying upon the shore they came upon the dead and mangled body of a woman, upon whose person there were a number of trinkets of jewelry and two diamond rings. In their eagerness to secure the plunder the Hungarians got into a squabble, during which one of the number severed the finger upon which were the rings and started on a run with his fearful prize. The revolting nature of the deed so wrought upon the pursuing farmers, who by this time were close at hand, that they gave immediate chase. Some of the Hungarians showed fight, but, being outnumbered, were compelled to flee for their lives. Nine of the brutes escaped, but four were literally driven into the surging river to their death. The thief who took the rings was among the number of the involuntary suicides.

At 8:30 o'clock this morning an old railroader, who had walked from Sang Hollow, stepped up to a number of men who were on the platform station at Curranville, and said: "Gentlemen, had I a shotgun with me half an hour ago, I would now be a murderer, yet with no fear of ever having to suffer for my crime. Two miles below here I watched three men going along the banks, stealing the jewels from the bodies of the dead wives and daughters of men who have been robbed of all they hold dear on earth."

He had no sooner finished the last sentence than five burly men, with looks of terrible determination written on their faces, were on their way to the scene of plunder, one with a coil of rope over his shoulder and another with a revolver in his hand. In twenty minutes, so it is stated, they had overtaken two of their victims, who were then in the act of cutting pieces from the ears and fingers from the hands of the bodies of two dead women. With revolver levelled at the scoundrels, the leader of the posse shouted: "Throw up your hands or I'll blow your heads off."

With blanched faces and trembling forms, they obeyed the order and begged for mercy. They were searched, and, as their pockets were emptied of their ghastly finds, the indignation of the crowd intensified, and when a bloody finger of an infant encircled with two tiny gold rings was found among the plunder in the leader's pocket, a cry went up. "Lynch them! Lynch them!" Without a moment's delay ropes were thrown around their necks and they were dangling to the limbs of a tree, in the branches of which an hour before were entangled the bodies of a dead father and son. After half an hour the ropes were cut and the bodies lowered and carried to a pile of rocks in the forest on the hill above. It is hinted that an Allegheny county official was one of the most prominent in this justifiable homicide.

One miserable wretch who was caught in the act of mutilating a body was chased by a crowd of citizens, and when captured was promptly strung up to a telegraph pole. A company of officers rescued him before he was dead, much to the disgust of many reputable people, whose feelings had been outraged by the treatment of their deceased relations. Shortly after midnight an attempt was made to rob the First National Bank, which, with the exception of the vaults, had been destroyed. The plunderers were discovered by the citizens' patrol, which had been established during the night, and a lively chase ensued. A number of the thieves —six, it is said—were shot. It is not known whether they were killed or not, as their bodies would have been washed away almost immediately if such had been the case.

PICTURES OF THE FLOOD.

As Seen From the Halted Trains—One who Saw the Break.

[From letters to the New York Sun.]

A number of travelers from the West who found the Pennsylvania Railroad line blocked, and turned back at Pittsburg or at points up the Conemaugh valley, got here by New York Central trains yesterday at noon and at 8:50 P. M. One of these passengers, Mr. F. C. Garrison, a commercial traveler, of this city, got as far up the valley as Latrobe, twelve miles below Johnstown.

"Our train passed through Pittsburg on Friday night," he said to a Sun reporter, "and got as far as Latrobe on Saturday morning. Here we were stopped by the flood. We were right beside the stream. The scene was an awful one. The river, which is usually about as wide as Broadway, was only three times as wide, but it was twenty feet above its usual level, the valley was so narrow there. It rushed down the valley, breaking here and there into great waves and swirling eddies. It reminded me of Hell Gate when the tide is in. There was wreckage all along the torrent as far as we could see. Parts of houses and barns were rushed into great shifting rafts with trees and logs, and every little way the dead body of some unfortunate. Everything that is associated with home or farm life was in the stream. There were dead animals by the hundred, pigs, cows, sheep, horses, and dogs with their kennels. As the wreckage went down the winding valley it was driven from one shore to the other. It was only at the sharp bends that there was any chance for help. No boat could live in the flood. The banks were lined for miles with persons anxious to help, but unable to do anything.

"The most heartrending sight was to see little children go by dead among the pieces of their wrecked homes. There were men and women, too, but how many I saw I cannot tell. After the sight of the first few corpses a horror overcame us, and we imagined a body in every white object that was thrown into sight by the heaving currents.

"Our train returned to Pittsburg by noon. The scene was the same all along the river, and we followed it for miles. The first of the wreckage reached Pittsburg at about the same time we got there. Standing on a bridge there, I saw the corpse of a woman carried by. It was caught amid a mass of trees and broken stuff that was packed together like a raft. Her long hair was undone, and spread in a tangle over the wreckage. She was entirely naked.'

Mr. Crouse, proprietor of the South Fork Fishing Club Hotel, came to Johnstown this afternoon. He says that when the dam of Conemaugh Lake broke the water seemed to leap, hardly touching the ground. It bounded down the valley, crashing and roaring, carrying everything before it. For a mile its front seemed like a solid wall twenty feet high. The warning given the stricken city was sent from South Fork village by Freight Agent Dechert. When the great wall that held the body of water began to crumble at the top, he sent a message begging the people of Johnstown for God's sake to take to the hills. He reports no serious accidents at South Fork. Richard Davis ran to Prospect Hill when the water began to rise. As to Mr. Dechert's warning, he says just such messages have been sent down at each flood since the lake was made. The warning so often proved unnecessary that little attention was paid to it this time.

"I cannot describe the mad rush," he said. "At first it looked like dust. That must have been the spray. I could see houses going down before it like a child's play blocks set on edge in a row. As it came nearer I could see houses totter for a moment, then rise, and the next moment be crushed like egg shells against each other."

ONE MOTHER'S STORY.

Husband and Seven Children Swept Away—The Last Good-Bye.

[Johnstown Correspondence New York Sun.]

An utterly wretched woman named Mrs. Fenn stood by a muddy pool of water trying to find some trace of a once happy home. She was half crazed with grief and her eyes were red and swollen. As the writer stepped to her side, she raised her pale and haggard face and remarked:

"They are all gone. Oh, God, be merciful to them. My husband and my seven dear little children have been swept down with the flood and I am left alone. We were driven by the awful flood into the garret, but the water followed us there. Inch by inch it kept rising until our heads were crushing against the roof. It was death to remain. So I raised a window and one by one placed my darlings on some driftwood, trusting to the great Creator. As I liberated the last one, my sweet little boy, he looked at me and said: 'Mamma, you always told me that the Lord would care for me; will He look after me now?' I saw him drift away, with his loving face turned toward me, and, with a prayer on my lips for his deliverance, he passed from sight forever. The next moment the roof crashed in, and I floated outside, to be rescued fifteen hours later from the roof of a house in Kernville. If I could only find one of my darlings I could bow to the will of God, but they are all gone. I have lost everything on earth now but my life, and I will return to my old Virginia home and lay me down for my last great sleep."

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Indications for Tuesday: Fair weather, followed by light rains, slightly warmer.

THE NUMBERLESS DEAD.

Every fresh account adds to the horror of the Johnstown calamity. The first estimate of two hundred dead was the utmost that men dared compute. This figure carried it beyond the worst preceding flood disaster in the United States, and there all were fain to stop. But as the situation has since been described so small a number of lost would have been due to miracles of divine mercy. The city that has been swept away contained 30,000 people, instead of from 1,000 to 5,000 as first estimated. The valley is narrow and deep and filled with factories, closely around which, as is their custom, the working people had built their homes, chiefly within the reach of the raging waters. Stores, offices and places of business were all down in the valley, and through it also the great railroads ran and had their depots. There were smaller towns further down, and these also became the prey of the torrent, the perpendicular depth of which was twenty feet above the ordinary stream. When the rushing tide struck great buildings it not only crushed them as if they had been smitten by a mountain avalanche, but it ploughed up their very foundations and left the ground where they stood without sign or trace of former occupation. Frame dwellings by the hundred were gathered into one great mass and rested against a bridge further down, and there with their clinging freight of humanity were set on fire, and even in this awful manner hundreds and possibly thousands perished who believed themselves to be above the reach of the waters. It is not strange, therefore that the estimate of the dead went up in one day to 6,000, and in another day to 10,000. They are numberless and can never be counted. They have been blotted out as though they had never been, and their crushed remains have been borne far down the awful current, to be buried deeply beneath the ruins and the silt, or swept out into the wide rivers below. And the great majority of these have left nobody behind to tell of their fate. Not only are their families all gone, but their neighbors, those who knew them, are dead also. In an industrial town like Johnstown are many people who have few or no acquaintances. It is a shifting population, many changing quickly from town to town, and others who are recent immigrants from foreign countries. In the great mass of the dead they will never be identified, and out of the greater mass of surviving humanity they can never be missed.

It is impossible for one not on the spot to take in the magnitude and the appalling nature of this great calamity. The death record is equal to that of some of the greatest battles of the late war. But after these battles our armies could gather up and count and name their dead, bury them tenderly, and those who mourned them at home found solace in their heroism and the reflection that the cause was worth the sacrifice. At Johnstown the great funeral procession will move on for weeks, and those who should have been mourners will follow in hearses, their eyes too closed forever. Week after week and month after month the river will continue to give up its nameless and half-buried dead. And after life's fitful fever we shall know that they sleep well, for the great cemetery that is to receive them has been laid on the mountain side, above the reach of Pennsylvania's rivers, even if all were poured into one.

Fearful destitution is reported at Johnstown, for the people are not all dead, and the rescued, bereft of home and all the necessaries of life, are in danger of perishing. Gov. Hill has promptly issued a proclamation calling upon the great state of New York to contribute of its wealth to comfort the suffering and aid in restoring the prosperity of the desolated towns. They are temporarily blotted out, but they must grow again, and in their first attempts to rise they will need much assistance. The present is not the time to speculate upon the causes of the calamity or censure the carelessness that caused it, whether of those who owned the great reservoir above the city or those who lived below it. Thorough investigation under official authority will be able to locate the responsibility in due time. Public duty can find enough to engage its efforts in gathering up the dead, ministering to the living, and wiping out the awful desolation that has come upon one of the happiest and most prosperous valleys of Pennsylvania.

TWO NEGATIVES DESTROY ONE ANOTHER.

A few days ago the Syracuse Standard copied the following from the Wine and Spirit Gazette, and endorsed it by putting over it the heading, "An Undeniable Fact:"

> No well-informed man will at this time seriously deny that Harrison does not owe his election to the most shameless and corrupt use of money.

Thereupon the Troy Press uttered an ejaculation of delighted surprise, and declared that "it is unusual for a party journal to administer such a rebuke to corruption within its own ranks." And it calls upon other Republican journals to copy the Standard's virtuous example.

We think the joke is on the Press. Its editor has forgotten the old rule in his school grammar that "two negatives destroy one another and are equivalent to an affirmative." Here are two negatives: "No well informed man will deny that Harrison does not owe his election," etc. The second negative may have been unintended in the Gazette, but the Standard saw the point and used it for all it was worth. The Press did not see it, and hence put itself in a position to be laughed at.

NO PENALTIES IN THE CONSTITUTION.

Now here is the Rochester Union and Advertiser rising in great majesty to inform the people that the proposed prohibition amendment to the constitution is a fraud because it does not provide penalties for the violation of the provision. We quote in part:

> The Republican amendment proposes, not that the manufacture shall be made a crime, but that the manufacture for sale, or the selling or keeping for sale as a beverage, shall not be carried on by any person! And it does not make the manufacture for sale, or the selling or keeping for sale as a beverage, a crime, or even require the Legislature to make and treat either as a crime, but simply says the Legislature shall by law prescribe regulations for the enforcement of the article and provide penalties for its violation!

Whew! But does the constitution provide penalties for murder, for burglary, for forgery, or any other act which is recognized as a crime by common law? Read the constitution and see. There is really no occasion for taking all the criminal laws of the state into the constitution. The Legislature must prescribe the penalties as it does in every other case of violating the law, and here is its authority in the first section of the proposed amendment:

> Section 1. No person shall manufacture for sale, or sell or keep for sale, as a beverage, any intoxicating liquors, whether brewed, fermented or distilled. The Legislature shall by law prescribe regulations for the enforcement of this article, and shall provide suitable penalties for its violation.

The Union is afraid that if the amendment is adopted the Legislature will fail to provide for its enforcement. But the same people whose votes are to adopt the amendment if it is adopted, will have the election of members of the Legislature. They will see to it that laws are made to set the amendment in operation. The Union's outcry suggests that it is scared. There is indeed danger, for if the Governor keeps on vetoing high license bills the people will vote for prohibition as the next best thing. And if the amendment is adopted just as it stands, our Democratic friends will get all the prohibition they want Wait and see.

THE GHOULS AT WORK.

Lynch Law for Those Who Plundered the Dead.

[Johnstown Correspondence N. Y. Tribune.]

Last night a party of thirteen Hungarians were noticed stealthily picking their way along the banks of the Conemaugh toward Sang Hollow. Suspicious of their purpose, several farmers armed themselves and started in pursuit. Soon their horrible fears were realized. The Hungarians were out for plunder. Lying upon the shore they came upon the dead and mangled body of a woman, upon whose person there were a number of trinkets of jewelry and two diamond rings. In their eagerness to secure the plunder the Hungarians got into a squabble, during which one of the number severed the finger upon which were the rings and started on a run with his fearful prize. The revolting nature of the deed so wrought upon the pursuing farmers, who by this time were close at hand, that they gave immediate chase. Some of the Hungarians showed fight, but, being outnumbered, were compelled to flee for their lives. Nine of the brutes escaped, but four were literally driven into the surging river to their death. The thief who took the rings was among the number of the involuntary suicides.

At 8:30 o'clock this morning an old railroader, who had walked from Sang Hollow, stepped up to a number of men who were on the platform station at Curranville, and said: "Gentlemen, had I a shotgun with me half an hour ago, I would now be a murderer, yet with no fear of ever having to suffer for my crime. Two miles below here I watched three men going along the banks, stealing the jewels from the bodies of the dead wives and daughters of men who have been robbed of all they hold dear on earth."

He had no sooner finished the last sentence than five burly men, with looks of terrible determination written on their faces, were on their way to the scene of plunder, one with a coil of rope over his shoulder and another with a revolver in his hand. In twenty minutes, so it is stated, they had overtaken two of their victims, who were then in the act of cutting pieces from the ears and fingers from the hands of the bodies of two dead women. With revolver levelled at the scoundrels, the leader of the posse shouted: "Throw up your hands or I'll blow your heads off."

With blanched faces and trembling forms, they obeyed the order and begged for mercy. They were searched, and, as their pockets were emptied of their ghastly finds, the indignation of the crowd intensified, and when a bloody finger of an infant encircled with two tiny gold rings was found among the plunder in the leader's pocket, a cry went up. "Lynch them! Lynch them!" Without a moment's delay ropes were thrown around their necks and they were dangling to the limbs of a tree, in the branches of which an hour before were entangled the bodies of a dead father and son. After half an hour the ropes were cut and the bodies lowered and carried to a pile of rocks in the forest on the hill above. It is hinted that an Allegheny county official was one of the most prominent in this justifiable homicide.

One miserable wretch who was caught in the act of mutilating a body was chased by a crowd of citizens, and when captured was promptly strung up to a telegraph pole. A company of officers rescued him before he was dead, much to the disgust of many reputable people, whose feelings had been outraged by the treatment of their deceased relations. Shortly after midnight an attempt was made to rob the First National Bank, which, with the exception of the vaults, had been destroyed. The plunderers were discovered by the citizens' patrol, which had been established during the night, and a lively chase ensued. A number of the thieves—six, it is said—were shot. It is not known whether they were killed or not, as their bodies would have been washed away almost immediately if such had been the case.

PICTURES OF THE FLOOD.

As Seen From the Halted Trains—One who Saw the Break.

[From letters to the New York Sun.]

A number of travelers from the West who found the Pennsylvania Railroad line blocked, and turned back at Pittsburg or at points up the Conemaugh valley, got here by New York Central trains yesterday at noon and at 8:50 P. M. One of these passengers, Mr. F. C. Garrison, a commercial traveler, of this city, got as far up the valley as Latrobe, twelve miles below Johnstown.

"Our train passed through Pittsburg on Friday night," he said to a Sun reporter, "and got as far as Latrobe on Saturday morning. Here we were stopped by the flood. We were right beside the stream. The scene was an awful one. The river, which is usually about as wide as Broadway, was only three times as wide, but it was twenty feet above its usual level, the valley was so narrow there. It rushed down the valley, breaking here and there into great waves and swirling eddies. It reminded me of Hell Gate when the tide is in. There was wreckage all along the torrent as far as we could see. Parts of houses and barns were rushed into great shifting rafts with trees and logs, and every little way the dead body of some unfortunate. Everything that is associated with home or farm life was in the stream. There were dead animals by the hundred, pigs, cows, sheep, horses, and dogs with their kennels. As the wreckage went down the winding valley it was driven from one shore to the other. It was only at the sharp bends that there was any chance for help. No boat could live in the flood. The banks were lined for miles with persons anxious to help, but unable to do anything.

"The most heartrending sight was to see little children go by dead among the pieces of their wrecked homes. There were men and women, too, but how many I saw I cannot tell. After the sight of the first few corpses a horror overcame us, and we imagined a body in every white object that was thrown into sight by the heaving currents.

"Our train returned to Pittsburg by noon. The scene was the same all along the river, and we followed it for miles. The first of the wreckage reached Pittsburg at about the same time we got there. Standing on a bridge there, I saw the corpse of a woman carried by. It was caught amid a mass of trees and broken stuff that was packed together like a raft. Her long hair was undone, and spread in a tangle over the wreckage. She was entirely naked.'

Mr. Crouse, proprietor of the South Fork Fishing Club Hotel, came to Johnstown this afternoon. He says that when the dam of Conemaugh Lake broke the water seemed to leap, hardly touching the ground. It bounded down the valley, crashing and roaring, carrying everything before it. For a mile its front seemed like a solid wall twenty feet high. The warning given the stricken city was sent from South Fork village by Freight Agent Dechert. When the great wall that held the body of water began to crumble at the top, he sent a message begging the people of Johnstown for God's sake to take to the hills. He reports no serious accidents at South Fork. Richard Davis ran to Prospect Hill when the water began to rise. As to Mr. Dechert's warning, he says just such messages have been sent down at each flood since the lake was made. The warning so often proved unnecessary that little attention was paid to it this time.

"I cannot describe the mad rush," he said. "At first it looked like dust. That must have been the spray. I could see houses going down before it like a child's play blocks set on edge in a row. As it came nearer I could see houses totter for a moment, then rise, and the next moment be crushed like egg shells against each other."

ONE MOTHER'S STORY.

Husband and Seven Children Swept Away—The Last Good-Bye.

[Johnstown Correspondence New York Sun.]

An utterly wretched woman named Mrs. Fenn stood by a muddy pool of water trying to find some trace of a once happy home. She was half crazed with grief and her eyes were red and swollen. As the writer stepped to her side, she raised her pale and haggard face and remarked:

"They are all gone. Oh, God, be merciful to them. My husband and my seven dear little children have been swept down with the flood and I am left alone. We were driven by the awful flood into the garret, but the water followed us there. Inch by inch it kept rising until our heads were crushing against the roof. It was death to remain. So I raised a window and one by one placed my darlings on some driftwood, trusting to the great Creator. As I liberated the last one, my sweet little boy, he looked at me and said: 'Mamma, you always told me that the Lord would care for me; will He look after me now?' I saw him drift away, with his loving face turned toward me, and, with a prayer on my lips for his deliverance, he passed from sight forever. The next moment the roof crashed in, and I floated outside, to be rescued fifteen hours later from the roof of a house in Kernville. If I could only find one of my darlings I could bow to the will of God, but they are all gone. I have lost everything on earth now but my life, and I will return to my old Virginia home and lay me down for my last great sleep."

I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for over 10 years; had it very bad, could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep—had to walk the floor. I purchased Ely's Cream Balm and am using it freely, it is working a cure surely. I have advised several friends to use it, and with happy results in every case. It is the one medicine above all others made to cure catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety and does all that is claimed for it. "My daughter was greatly troubled with Scrofula, and, at one time, it was feared she would lose her sight. Ayer's Sarsaparilla has completely restored her health, and her eyes are as well as ever, with not a trace of scrofula in her system."—G. King, Killingly, Conn.

Those sharp pains will quickly go after you apply a Hop Plaster. Ladies, pay attention to this.

THE WOES OF WOMEN.

Weariness, Unhappiness and Misery Seem to be the Lot of Women Instead of Brightness, Happiness and Joy—The Cause of Bad Complexion Explained.

"Why is it that so few American women have good complexions?" asked Mrs. Langtry on her first visit to America. Her question can be easily answered. Women are sallow because the blood does not circulate well through their bodies. It does not fill their cheeks with rich color and their eyes with brilliancy. It is "sluggish." What is the result? Bad color, weariness, and poor health. What will prevent this? A gentle and pure stimulant that imparts strength, life and good circulation. This is precisely what Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey does. It is not a beverage; it is a health-giving remedy. It is admitted to have done more in making ladies stronger and healthier than any other preparation known to the world. It has the endorsement of clergymen, physicians and lady workers in the temperance cause, and it has never been known to fail in strengthening, restoring and benefiting. A well-known lady, writing on the subject, said:

"I can never describe the change that has taken place in my appearance and in my feelings. Instead of feeling tired and 'blue' as I once did, I am now strong and young, both in feeling and appearance. I had a great prejudice against the word 'Whiskey,' but since I have found that Duffy's is indeed a pure and harmless remedy, I feel like letting all women know what a grand help it is."

The experience of this lady has been verified in thousands of cases, and an innumerable number of women are kept in perfect health to-day wholly through this great remedy. To all purchasers we desire to say: "Be sure and secure the genuine, and take no other." It is sold everywhere.

FOR WOMEN.

Are you wasting slowly but surely away from the effects of female weaknesses? Are you wan, pale, and nervous? Do you not sometimes feel that life is losing its attractions, and that you are gradually sinking into a decline which, if not taken in hand promptly, will end in an early death? Yes, you have felt all these things, and doubtless know that tens of thousands of once rosy-cheeked, plump, healthy girls and women go into their graves every year solely because these weaknesses were allowed to sap up the well springs of life till nature could no longer stand the strain. There is not a sensible maid, wife or mother who will not appreciate as more valuable than gold and precious stones Dr Fontaine's new remedy PALMETTO, which is safe, sure, and speedy in curing the worst case of female weakness.

Mailed secure from observation on receipt of $1.00 I also have a full line of elegant Toilet Goods, including Face Cream and Jellies, Wrinkle Paste Fattening Formula, Auburnine, Depilatory, Acnine, Freckle Lotion, etc. Development of a beautiful form a specialty. Sealed circulars, 4 cents.

A Doorman Found in an Unconscious Condition—Large Crowds at the Sea Shore—Sensation in the Real Estate Market—Movements of French President.

Michael J. Kerwin, doorman at the Second Precinct Station, Newark, was found unconscious in a closet at the station yesterday, and for a long time was supposed to be dead. He had an epileptic fit, however, and was sent home. He will probably die. Kerwin is one of the oldest policemen in Newark, and was once a detective and arrested William Porter and "Sheeny Mike" in that city for a jewelry-store burglary in Troy, N. Y.

An immense number of people went to Staten Island yesterday, and the Staten Island boats and trains were taxed to their utmost capacity. There were at least 10,000 people at South Beach during the day. The bathing season was opened there, and not a few took a dip in the surf. Another big crowd visited Silver Lake and Erastina, and it is estimated that the total number of visitors on the island was fully 20,000.

Late on Saturday night a fire broke out at Voorhees Station, near New Brunswick, N. J., which cost the lives of two men. The fire started in the great hay press, which was destroyed. There was $8,800 worth of damage done.

The sale by the Bonner brothers of the southeast corner of Fifth-avenue and Fifty-seventh-street, New-York City, created somewhat of a sensation in the real estate market, it being the last vacant plot below the Park.

I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for over 10 years; had it very bad, could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep—had to walk the floor. I purchased Ely's Cream Balm and am using it freely, it is working a cure surely. I have advised several friends to use it, and with happy results in every case. It is the one medicine above all others made to cure catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety and does all that is claimed for it. It is curing my deafness.—B. W. Sperry, Hartford, Conn.

THE WOES OF WOMEN.

Weariness, Unhappiness and Misery Seem to be the Lot of Women Instead of Brightness, Happiness and Joy—The Cause of Bad Complexion Explained.

"Why is it that so few American women have good complexions?" asked Mrs. Langtry on her first visit to America. Her question can be easily answered. Women are sallow because the blood does not circulate well through their bodies. It does not fill their cheeks with rich color and their eyes with brilliancy. It is "sluggish." What is the result? Bad color, weariness, and poor health. What will prevent this? A gentle and pure stimulant that imparts strength, life and good circulation. This is precisely what Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey does. It is not a beverage; it is a health-giving remedy. It is admitted to have done more in making ladies stronger and healthier than any other preparation known to the world. It has the endorsement of clergymen, physicians and lady workers in the temperance cause, and it has never been known to fail in strengthening, restoring and benefiting. A well-known lady, writing on the subject, said:

"I can never describe the change that has taken place in my appearance and in my feelings. Instead of feeling tired and 'blue' as I once did, I am now strong and young, both in feeling and appearance. I had a great prejudice against the word 'Whiskey,' but since I have found that Duffy's is indeed a pure and harmless remedy, I feel like letting all women know what a grand help it is."

The experience of this lady has been verified in thousands of cases, and an innumerable number of women are kept in perfect health to-day wholly through this great remedy. To all purchasers we desire to say: "Be sure and secure the genuine, and take no other." It is sold everywhere.

FOR WOMEN.

Are you wasting slowly but surely away from the effects of female weaknesses? Are you wan, pale, and nervous? Yes, you have felt all these things, and doubtless know that tens of thousands of once rosy-cheeked, plump, healthy girls and women go into their graves every year solely because these weaknesses were allowed to sap up the well springs of life till nature could no longer stand the strain. There is not a sensible maid, wife or mother who will not appreciate as more valuable than gold and precious stones Dr Fontaine's new remedy PALMETTO, which is safe, sure, and speedy in curing the worst case of female weakness.

I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for over 10 years; had it very bad, could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep—had to walk the floor. I purchased Ely's Cream Balm and am using it freely, it is working a cure surely. I have advised several friends to use it, and with happy results in every case. It is the one medicine above all others made to cure catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety and does all that is claimed for it. "My daughter was greatly troubled with Scrofula, and, at one time, it was feared she would lose her sight. Ayer's Sarsaparilla has completely restored her health, and her eyes are as well as ever, with not a trace of scrofula in her system."—G. King, Killingly, Conn.

Those sharp pains will quickly go after you apply a Hop Plaster. Ladies, pay attention to this.

THE WOES OF WOMEN.

Weariness, Unhappiness and Misery Seem to be the Lot of Women Instead of Brightness, Happiness and Joy—The Cause of Bad Complexion Explained.

"Why is it that so few American women have good complexions?" asked Mrs. Langtry on her first visit to America. Her question can be easily answered. Women are sallow because the blood does not circulate well through their bodies. It does not fill their cheeks with rich color and their eyes with brilliancy. It is "sluggish." What is the result? Bad color, weariness, and poor health. What will prevent this? A gentle and pure stimulant that imparts strength, life and good circulation. This is precisely what Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey does. It is not a beverage; it is a health-giving remedy. It is admitted to have done more in making ladies stronger and healthier than any other preparation known to the world. It has the endorsement of clergymen, physicians and lady workers in the temperance cause, and it has never been known to fail in strengthening, restoring and benefiting. A well-known lady, writing on the subject, said:

"I can never describe the change that has taken place in my appearance and in my feelings. Instead of feeling tired and 'blue' as I once did, I am now strong and young, both in feeling and appearance. I had a great prejudice against the word 'Whiskey,' but since I have found that Duffy's is indeed a pure and harmless remedy, I feel like letting all women know what a grand help it is."

The experience of this lady has been verified in thousands of cases, and an innumerable number of women are kept in perfect health to-day wholly through this great remedy. To all purchasers we desire to say: "Be sure and secure the genuine, and take no other." It is sold everywhere.

FOR WOMEN.

Are you wasting slowly but surely away from the effects of female weaknesses? Are you wan, pale, and nervous? Do you not sometimes feel that life is losing its attractions, and that you are gradually sinking into a decline which, if not taken in hand promptly, will end in an early death? Yes, you have felt all these things, and doubtless know that tens of thousands of once rosy-cheeked, plump, healthy girls and women go into their graves every year solely because these weaknesses were allowed to sap up the well springs of life till nature could no longer stand the strain. There is not a sensible maid, wife or mother who will not appreciate as more valuable than gold and precious stones Dr Fontaine's new remedy PALMETTO, which is safe, sure, and speedy in curing the worst case of female weakness.

CITY AND SUBURBAN NEWS

AND BITS OF CHAT AND GOSSIP OVERHEARD HERE TO-DAY.

Four Boys, who, it is Alleged, Destroyed Flower Beds, Arrested—Battle Between Bees—Local Branch State Charities Aid Association—Board of Health.

In all probability several relatives of the Corn family of Kingston, lost their lives in the flood which swept away Johnstown, in the State of Pennsylvania. Lewis Corn, son of the late Isidore Corn, had an uncle residing in that City, A. L. Williams, who was married, and the father of a Mrs. Charles Simons, who had three children. Charles Simons was the proprietor of a shoe store in the Grand Opera House building. Mr. Corn's brother, Aaron A. Corn, a young man 17 years old was a clerk in the store. Mr. Corn expected to leave Johnstown last Thursday. No word has been received from him, and it is feared by his parents that he may have remained there. When Aaron Corn visited his home in this City last September, he spoke of the danger which threatened Johnstown from floods. In the spring of 1888 he said the water rose so high it flooded streets and families were forced to move to the upper stories of the houses. At that time the dam at South Fork was considered dangerous, and citizens frequently talked about it.

Ex-Alderman Edward Brietenbucher is the owner of a number of hives of bees. Yesterday afternoon the bees of one hive robbed another hive of its honey. Mr. Breitenbucher said to-day: "It is an interesting sight to witness a 'rob.' It is also an unfrequent occurence. The battle is usually a long one. The stealing may be occasioned by the bees of one hive becoming lazy. Yesterday the thieves were victorious. It is a hard matter to tell which of the hives is doing the stealing. When the hive was traced I cut the combs and allowed the honey to run. That is the only method to stop a fight. The thieving bees usually direct their attention to the Queen of a hive, and when that Imperial insect is killed, the bees in her hive join the robbers, and all the honey in the hive is carried away. Such occurences are the cause of much loss to bee-keepers."

On Saturday Officer Robert Smith arrested boys named Claude Green, John Cuneo, Augustus York and Samuel Hull on the charge of removing plants and flowers from flower beds, lawns and yards of a number of Kingston residents. This species of vandalism has been going on for some time. Residents of Fair and Green-streets and Washington-avenue have been particularly annoyed, whole beds having been stripped. Choice plants were also taken from pots on piazzas. The boys confessed, but gave no reason for committing the acts. They usually went in company. Their case will be considered next Saturday.

Henry Rosencranse, who died recently in Kingston, left an estate valued at several thousand dollars. A number of his relatives have been to this City from other places, making inquiries about it. They ascertained that Mr. Rosencranse left a will in the possession of Hanson Harley, which in due time will be offered for probate at the Ulster County Surrogate's Court.

A "barge propeller," the captain of which was not familiar with the Rondout Creek, attempted to go through the slip between the Delaware & Hudson Canal Company's middle-ground dock and the shore dock on Sunday, but was soon compelled to stop. A pilot who is acquainted with the channel went on board and the propeller sailed up the Creek in the usual course.

Meetings of secret organizatins will be held here as follows: To-night, Franklin Lodge, Knights of Pythias; Rondout Lodge F. & A. M.; Tuesday night, Ulster Lodge, No. 76, Knights of Pythias, Wiltwyck Lodge, Knights of Pythias; Wednesday night, Aretas Lodge, I. O. O. F.; regular convocation of Mount Horeb Chapter, No. 75, R. A. Few shad are being caught in the Hudson River by fishermen hereabout. The Hartley Brothers, who have been fishing near Kingston Point for some time past, have discharged their force of men and returned to their home in Germantown. On Saturday night Pells & Delaney, of Kingston Point, paid off their hands and let them go.

"Progressive conversation" is now added to all the other progressions in society. A programme card is arranged. Engagements are made previously and entered on the card for the discussion of each topic, to which a stipulated number of minutes is allowed. At the tinkle of a bell, subject and partner are both changed.

There are a number of German women in this City who mow lawns, with small scythes, taking the grass they cut in payment for their labor. One woman said this forenoon that she would cut and gather enough grass from people's yards during the summer to keep her cow all winter.

The Local Branch of the State Charities Aid Association will hold its session at the Parsonage of St. Peter's Church, Rosendale, on the invitation of the Rev. J. Gleason, Thursday, June 6. Members residing in this City will take a noon train on the Wallkill Valley Railroad.

A special day is talked of for destroying caterpillars. No such action is taken in the matter of potato bugs. They can be destroyed every day as usual, and there are plenty in this vicinity to kill.

Bad smells prevail under shade trees in this City. Wherever mud is not allowed to dry up with the aid of the sun's rays people cannot expect to be healthy. Trees are more ornamental when trimmed.

Hon. Marius Schoonmaker, of Kingston, has received from Captain Farquhar, Captain of the United States ship Trenton, a photograph of the grave of the late Captain C. M. Schoonmaker.

The water in the Rondout Creek yesterday was not as high as many people expected it would be on account of the heavy rains recently, but it was of a red-mud color.

Cabbage leaves and decaying vegetables are thrown in the street in front of places where vegetables are sold in Rondout. This should not be allowed.

The price of school books is not in accord with the free school system of this State and parents of pupils make complaint against the exaction.

There are people living here who believe that if a person carries in his pocket a horse chestnut that he will never be afflicted with rheumatism.

The Feast of Pentacost will be celebrated by the Hebrew citizens of Kingston City tomorrow. It will begin at sundown.

Many houses were made damp by rain in this City recently and fires were kindled today in stoves to dry the moisture.

It is said the "milk shake" will retain its popularity this summer. This refers to the harmless temperance beverage.

The road leading to Montrepose Cemetery over Woolsey's Commons is being topdressed with stone.

A meeting of the members of the Board of Health of this City will be held on Wednesday afternoon.

Fair weather, followed by light rains, slightly warmer, promised hereabout on Tuesday.

P. A. Owens, of the reportorial staff of the Poughkeepsie Enterprise, spent Sunday in Rondout.

The Young Men's Catholic Literary Society will make an excursion on the Fourth of July.

There were 19 fair days in the month of May and 12 days during which rain fell.

Gutters in the Rondout streets are thoroughly washed out by the recent rains.

Prudent children are beginning to save their pennies for the Fourth of July

The law in relation to selling cigarettes to boys is being disregarded in this City.

A Rondout barber has made use of a lamppost for a sign by striping it.

Laurel blossoms are prolific this season, and are very pretty.

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF EXCISE.

Commissioner Groves Refuses to Sign Licenses for Places He Considers Not Hotels.

When the Excise Commissioners of this City met in City Hall this afternoon, a large number of saloon-keepers were present. A protest asking the Commissioners to refuse a license to a saloon-keeper at "20 The Strand," was read. A communication was also received calling the attention of the Commissioners to the fact that saloons on Mill-street "keep open houses" on Sundays.

The first application for a license considered was that of one John J. Henry, against whom a protest was entered at a previous meeting by the Newark Lime & Cement Company. Commissioner Mayer stated that he had made personal inquiries regarding Henry's place and was satisfied that he was entitled to a license. The application was laid on the table.

Christian Eisenla applied for a hotel license. He was refused.

A warm discussion arose between Commissioners Mayer and Groves. Mr. Groves stated that Mr. Mayer was not sustaining a previous agreement made by him that he was in favor of restricting the number of hotels to 16 for Kingston and six for Rondout, and that only bona fide hotels should be granted licenses. Mr. Mayer said that he had agreed to reduce the number of hotel licenses to 50 per cent. less than last year. Mr. Groves stated that he had made up his mind to sign only such hotelkeepers' licenses as in his opinion were in accordance to law and justice. Mr. Mayer stated that he would sign the number he had agreed upon—50 per cent. less than last year.

Next came Walter S. Simpson. He wanted a hotel license also. He was refused. He then applied for a store license,

Thomas Rigney was the next man to ask for a hotel license. He said he had "kept a place" for many years and had all the accomodations for a hotel. He invited the Board to inspect his premises.

Other applicants for hotel licenses were refused. They, in most instances, took out ale and beer licenses. The following licenses were granted up to 4 o'clock this afternoon:

Ale and beer licenses were granted to the following:

Michael F. Larkin, P. S. Crispell, John F. Brady, A. Koons, John Motrie, Joseph Moser, Michael Flick, Peter Mooney, L. Merchant, Patrick J. Brennan, John Hughes, Sessman Newland.

Hotel licenses were granted to the following:

Ferdinand Meyer, Joseph Scully, Anna C. Markle.

A store license was granted to N. S. Eckert.

THE DEATH RECORD IN THIS CITY.

Demise of Two Old Citizens—Died Within Two Days.

Jacob G. D. Brandow, father of Edwin D. Brandow, of this City, died last night aged 89 years. About two weeks ago Mr. Brandow accidentally fell, sustaining a fracture of his left wrist and severely injuring one of his hips. Mr. Brandow was born in the town of Catskill, and he was the last of a family of six brothers and sisters. He was an old-time Hudson River boatman. In 1825 he was Captain of a freight sloop that ran between Hudson and New-York City. When he gave up boating he purchased a farm in the town of Coxsackie, where he remained for many years. Mr. Brandow was married twice. His first wife was a Miss Hallenbeck. His second was Miss Judith A. Van Wie, of Catskill. Until six months ago Mr. Brandow shaved himself. Funeral services will be held at the family resinence on Wednesday forenoon. The body will be taken to Athens for interment.

Philo Low, of this City, died at his residence, on Fair-street, on Sunday. Mr. Low was born in Milford, Otsego County, this State, about 62 years ago. He resided for a number of years in Massachusetts and in Michigan. He became engaged with his brother, J. M. Low, in the construction of water works in 1881. In 1882 he came to this City, took an active part in the construction of the water works here, and in 1887 in those of Saugerties. Mr. Low was married to Miss Cemanthia Alpin, of Hartwick, N. Y., about 40 years ago, and leaves her his widow. He was a member of the St. James M. E. Church. Funeral services will be held at the family residence, on Fair-street, at 7 o'clock this evening. The body will be taken to Milford for interment. Funeral services will be held there at the M. E. Church at 2 P. M., Tuesday.

Four adult male members of the St. James M. E. Church, Kingston, have died within 10 days.

Mrs. Forbes, mother of John Forbes, died at her residence on Prospect-street, this City, to-day.

PORTION OF LOWLANDS INUNDATED.

Esopus Creek Overflowed Its Banks and Caused Much Damage.

The Esopus Creek overflowed its banks Saturday night, and covered a portion of the Kingston Lowlands. Those who have seen floods in this Creek say that the water raised faster from 6 to 8 o'clock than they had ever before known it to do in the same period of time. A man who stood in Voorhees' Lane, at the water's edge, says that it raised so fast he was forced to step back continually to keep from wetting his feet. It continued to rise for several hours, and then fell as rapidly as it had risen. It caused considerable damage to crops all the way from Cantine's Bridge, in the town of Marbletown, to and through the town of Ulster. Charles Merritt, of Kingston, was damaged between $800 and $900. Nine acres of rye, a large field of potatoes, corn etc., were under water, while $150 worth of manure, which had been stacked on the field, was swept away. Fences were destroyed. The creek ran over the roadway at Mutton Hollow in the town of Ulster and flooded the lower portion of several houses. Among those who had crops destroyed are John Shorter, A. S. Babcock, Michael Ripley and Clarence Schoonmaker. Three brothers named Walker, who raise fruit and vegetables along the stone road, are said to have lost everything they had planted.

IN THE LOCAL FIELD OF SPORT.

Record of Ball Players—A Series of Games to be Contested.

Richard F. Johnston, of this City, who plays with the Bostons, has done poor batting this season. He stands sixty-fourth. In 23 games—98 times at bat—he has made 20 first base hits and scored 19 runs. In fielding he stands ninth among the centre-fielders, having put out 45 out of 53 chances and making eight errors. His average is .849 per cent.

Brouthers, of the Bostons, a native and resident of Wappingers Falls, stands at the head of the batters in the National League this season.

The Kingston Base Ball Club will play the Norwalks, of the Connecticut State League, on the Union-avenue grounds on Thursday.

A series of games will be played between members of the Hauck Gynasium Club and the Newburgh Athletic Club this summer.

NEWS FROM THE FLOODED DISTRICTS.

Lives Lost in Maryland—English Comment On the Disaster.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

ROCHESTER, June 3.—The Genesee River continues to rise at this point, although it is falling up the valley. Cellars along Front-street are flooded here, but the damage will be small. A special dispatch from Dansville says the damage there will amount to $20,000. A number of culverts, some farm stock and a great deal of produce was swept away yesterday. At Avon the damage will not amount to much. A number of fences on the flats were carried away. The River is two miles wide at that point. Usually at this time of the year it is 150 feet wide. In the Wyoming Valley the creeks fell as rapidly as they rose, and all danger is now over. Some culverts and one or two small bridges were carried away.

BUFFALO, June 3.—A special from Olean, N. Y., says all danger from the flood is past the high waters are receding. Several houses and many small buildings have been swept away or wrecked. Both bridges over the Allegheny River have been carried away. The City Water Works are still useless on account of the flood.

CARLISLE, Pa., June 3.—Later information from the surrounding country shows that the loss by the floods will be over $200,000. At William's Grove eight buildings have been swept away along the line of the Harrisburg & Potomac Railroad and for miles the roadbed and tracks have been washed away. Fifteen bridges have floated away. The large dam at Laurel gave way, carrying small buildings, bridges, fences, trees, etc., with it, inflicting a loss of $20,000 on Mullen Brothers, paper manufacturers. The Cumberland Valley Railroad Company's loss will be heavy. A number of new bridges have been washed away. As far as heard from no lives have been lost.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The railroad situation in Virginia is frightfully bad. There will probably be no trains south for several days. Numerous washouts are reported. The town of Occoquan, 16 miles below Alexandria, is from six to 10 feet under water.

Two spans of the long bridge crossing the Potomac here have been carried away by the flood.

Senator Gorman, for many years at the head of the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal Company, says the flood will undoubtedly cause the abandonment of the canal. He does not think the Directors, owing to the manner in which the Maryland Constsitution is formed, can raise one-hundredth part of the money to restore the works.

BALTIMORE, June 3.—Reports of damage to country roads, culverts, bridges and houses continue to reach here. Frederick County will lose, in the destruction of bridges, $100,000, and between Knoxville and Harper's Ferry the loss will be $500,000. At Harper's Ferry the people are still encamped on the hills. The railroad bridge spanning the Shenandoah was destroyed. The railroad tracks between Weverton and Sandy Hook are badly washed away and in places covered with from two to eight feet with bowlders, earth and trees. The loss of life was as follows: Joseph Creager, of Leitersburg, drowned in Antietam Creek; George Derrick, of Trevanion Mills, drowned in Pipe Creek; Mrs. Charles McFadden, of Taneytown, drowned in the Creek near that place; William Hudson, of Orange Grove, drowned in the Patapsco; Miss Margaret Moore, of Taneytown, drowned in the creek near that place; a colored man, name not known, drowned in Wicomico County; James Lawson, of Monrovia, Frederick County, drowned in the Monocacy. Theodore Wolte, of Williamsport, drowned in the Potomac; a colored man, name unknown, of Cumberland, drowned in the Potomac.

ENGLISH COMMENT ON DISASTER.

By Cable to The Freeman.

LONDON, June 3.—The Daily News, discussing the danger of artificial lakes, says: "America, where everything is on a scale of vastness which we cannot experience, seems destined to suffer the calamities of civilization, as it exhibits its triumphs, on the most colossal scale. The sympathy of the whole civilized world will be with the people of Pennsylvania in the saddest, most striking and most overwhelming misfortune that ever befell a people of the English race." The other morning dailies refer to the disaster in a similar strain.

HEAVY STORM IN ENGLAND.

By Cable to The Freeman

ENGLAND, June 3.—Heavy storms of rain and lightning have occurred in the Midlands of England. The lower part of Liverpool is under water. A bank building at Preston has been struck by lightning. Numerous accidents are reported from other places.

Hon. D. F. Davis,

Ex-Governor of the State of Maine, ex-Collector of the port of Bangor, was asked to investigate the case of Reuben Severance, of Stillwater, Me. He did so, finding the following to be the facts: Fourteen years ago a tumor appeared in the groin of Severance, increasing in size until it hung nearly to the knee, weighing about seven pounds. He carried this ten years, as no physician dared cut it out, fearing a shock to the nervous system would kill the patient.

There was no digestion; ringing sounds were in the ears; dizziness, palpitation, inflammation, with pains. Patient bed-ridden and praying for relief. Began to use Brown's Sarsaparilla, and fourteen bottles scattered and entirely eradicted this tumor, and Mr. Severance is now about his business. We will find abundant proof of this and other wonderful cures on application, we will offer the grandest blood purifier ever known, Chief Justice Peters says Dr. Brown was twenty years in perfecting this grand preparation. There is nothing in the world like

AND BITS OF CHAT AND GOSSIP OVERHEARD HERE TO-DAY.

Four Boys, who, it is Alleged, Destroyed Flower Beds, Arrested—Battle Between Bees—Local Branch State Charities Aid Association—Board of Health.

In all probability several relatives of the Corn family of Kingston, lost their lives in the flood which swept away Johnstown, in the State of Pennsylvania. Lewis Corn, son of the late Isidore Corn, had an uncle residing in that City, A. L. Williams, who was married, and the father of a Mrs. Charles Simons, who had three children. Charles Simons was the proprietor of a shoe store in the Grand Opera House building. Mr. Corn's brother, Aaron A. Corn, a young man 17 years old was a clerk in the store. Mr. Corn expected to leave Johnstown last Thursday. No word has been received from him, and it is feared by his parents that he may have remained there. When Aaron Corn visited his home in this City last September, he spoke of the danger which threatened Johnstown from floods. In the spring of 1888 he said the water rose so high it flooded streets and families were forced to move to the upper stories of the houses. At that time the dam at South Fork was considered dangerous, and citizens frequently talked about it.

Ex-Alderman Edward Brietenbucher is the owner of a number of hives of bees. Yesterday afternoon the bees of one hive robbed another hive of its honey. Mr. Breitenbucher said to-day: "It is an interesting sight to witness a 'rob.' It is also an unfrequent occurence. The battle is usually a long one. The stealing may be occasioned by the bees of one hive becoming lazy. Yesterday the thieves were victorious. It is a hard matter to tell which of the hives is doing the stealing. When the hive was traced I cut the combs and allowed the honey to run. That is the only method to stop a fight. The thieving bees usually direct their attention to the Queen of a hive, and when that Imperial insect is killed, the bees in her hive join the robbers, and all the honey in the hive is carried away. Such occurences are the cause of much loss to bee-keepers."

On Saturday Officer Robert Smith arrested boys named Claude Green, John Cuneo, Augustus York and Samuel Hull on the charge of removing plants and flowers from flower beds, lawns and yards of a number of Kingston residents. This species of vandalism has been going on for some time. Residents of Fair and Green-streets and Washington-avenue have been particularly annoyed, whole beds having been stripped. Choice plants were also taken from pots on piazzas. The boys confessed, but gave no reason for committing the acts. They usually went in company. Their case will be considered next Saturday.

Henry Rosencranse, who died recently in Kingston, left an estate valued at several thousand dollars. A number of his relatives have been to this City from other places, making inquiries about it. They ascertained that Mr. Rosencranse left a will in the possession of Hanson Harley, which in due time will be offered for probate at the Ulster County Surrogate's Court.

A "barge propeller," the captain of which was not familiar with the Rondout Creek, attempted to go through the slip between the Delaware & Hudson Canal Company's middle-ground dock and the shore dock on Sunday, but was soon compelled to stop. A pilot who is acquainted with the channel went on board and the propeller sailed up the Creek in the usual course.

Meetings of secret organizatins will be held here as follows: To-night, Franklin Lodge, Knights of Pythias; Rondout Lodge F. & A. M.; Tuesday night, Ulster Lodge, No. 76, Knights of Pythias, Wiltwyck Lodge, Knights of Pythias; Wednesday night, Aretas Lodge, I. O. O. F.; regular convocation of Mount Horeb Chapter, No. 75, R. A. M.

Few shad are being caught in the Hudson River by fishermen hereabout. The Hartley Brothers, who have been fishing near Kingston Point for some time past, have discharged their force of men and returned to their home in Germantown. On Saturday night Pells & Delaney, of Kingston Point, paid off their hands and let them go.

"Progressive conversation" is now added to all the other progressions in society. A programme card is arranged. Engagements are made previously and entered on the card for the discussion of each topic, to which a stipulated number of minutes is allowed. At the tinkle of a bell, subject and partner are both changed.

There are a number of German women in this City who mow lawns, with small scythes, taking the grass they cut in payment for their labor. One woman said this forenoon that she would cut and gather enough grass from people's yards during the summer to keep her cow all winter.

The Local Branch of the State Charities Aid Association will hold its session at the Parsonage of St. Peter's Church, Rosendale, on the invitation of the Rev. J. Gleason, Thursday, June 6. Members residing in this City will take a noon train on the Wallkill Valley Railroad.

A special day is talked of for destroying caterpillars. No such action is taken in the matter of potato bugs. They can be destroyed every day as usual, and there are plenty in this vicinity to kill.

Bad smells prevail under shade trees in this City. Wherever mud is not allowed to dry up with the aid of the sun's rays people cannot expect to be healthy. Trees are more ornamental when trimmed.

Hon. Marius Schoonmaker, of Kingston, has received from Captain Farquhar, Captain of the United States ship Trenton, a photograph of the grave of the late Captain C. M. Schoonmaker.

The water in the Rondout Creek yesterday was not as high as many people expected it would be on account of the heavy rains recently, but it was of a red-mud color.

Cabbage leaves and decaying vegetables are thrown in the street in front of places where vegetables are sold in Rondout. This should not be allowed.

The price of school books is not in accord with the free school system of this State and parents of pupils make complaint against the exaction.

There are people living here who believe that if a person carries in his pocket a horse chestnut that he will never be afflicted with rheumatism.

The Feast of Pentacost will be celebrated by the Hebrew citizens of Kingston City tomorrow. It will begin at sundown.

Many houses were made damp by rain in this City recently and fires were kindled today in stoves to dry the moisture.

It is said the "milk shake" will retain its popularity this summer. This refers to the harmless temperance beverage.

The road leading to Montrepose Cemetery over Woolsey's Commons is being top-dressed with stone.

A meeting of the members of the Board of Health of this City will be held on Wednesday afternoon.

Fair weather, followed by light rains, slightly warmer, promised hereabout on Tuesday.

P. A. Owens, of the reportorial staff of the Poughkeepsie Enterprise, spent Sunday in Rondout.

The Young Men's Catholic Literary Society will make an excursion on the Fourth of July.

There were 19 fair days in the month of May and 12 days during which rain fell.

Gutters in the Rondout streets are thoroughly washed out by the recent rains.

Prudent children are beginning to save their pennies for the Fourth of July

The law in relation to selling cigarettes to boys is being disregarded in this City.

A Rondout barber has made use of a lamppost for a sign by striping it.

Laurel blossoms are prolific this season, and are very pretty.

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF EXCISE.

Commissioner Groves Refuses to Sign Licenses for Places He Considers Not Hotels.

When the Excise Commissioners of this City met in City Hall this afternoon, a large number of saloon-keepers were present. A protest asking the Commissioners to refuse a license to a saloon-keeper at "20 The Strand," was read. A communication was also received calling the attention of the Commissioners to the fact that saloons on Mill-street "keep open houses" on Sundays.

The first application for a license considered was that of one John J. Henry, against whom a protest was entered at a previous meeting by the Newark Lime & Cement Company. Commissioner Mayer stated that he had made personal inquiries regarding Henry's place and was satisfied that he was entitled to a license. The application was laid on the table.

Christian Eisenla applied for a hotel license. He was refused.

A warm discussion arose between Commissioners Mayer and Groves. Mr. Groves stated that Mr. Mayer was not sustaining a previous agreement made by him that he was in favor of restricting the number of hotels to 16 for Kingston and six for Rondout, and that only bona fide hotels should be granted licenses. Mr. Mayer said that he had agreed to reduce the number of hotel licenses to 50 per cent. less than last year. Mr. Groves stated that he had made up his mind to sign only such hotel-keepers' licenses as in his opinion were in accordance to law and justice. Mr. Mayer stated that he would sign the number he had agreed upon—50 per cent. less than last year.

Next came Walter S. Simpson. He wanted a hotel license also. He was refused. He then applied for a store license,

Thomas Rigney was the next man to ask for a hotel license. He said he had "kept a place" for many years and had all the accomodations for a hotel. He invited the Board to inspect his premises.

Other applicants for hotel licenses were refused. They, in most instances, took out ale and beer licenses. The following licenses were granted up to 4 o'clock this afternoon:

Ale and beer licenses were granted to the following:

Michael F. Larkin, P. S. Crispell, John F. Brady, A. Koons, John Motrie, Joseph Moser, Michael Flick, Peter Mooney, L. Merchant, Patrick J. Brennan, John Hughes, Sessman Newland.

Hotel licenses were granted to the following:

Ferdinand Meyer, Joseph Scully, Anna C. Markle.

A store license was granted to N. S. Eckert.

THE DEATH RECORD IN THIS CITY.

Demise of Two Old Citizens—Died Within Two Days.

Jacob G. D. Brandow, father of Edwin D. Brandow, of this City, died last night aged 89 years. About two weeks ago Mr. Brandow accidentally fell, sustaining a fracture of his left wrist and severely injuring one of his hips. Mr. Brandow was born in the town of Catskill, and he was the last of a family of six brothers and sisters. He was an old-time Hudson River boatman. In 1825 he was Captain of a freight sloop that ran between Hudson and New-York City. When he gave up boating he purchased a farm in the town of Coxsackie, where he remained for many years. Mr. Brandow was married twice. His first wife was a Miss Hallenbeck. His second was Miss Judith A. Van Wie, of Catskill. Until six months ago Mr. Brandow shaved himself. Funeral services will be held at the family resinence on Wednesday forenoon. The body will be taken to Athens for interment.

PORTION OF LOWLANDS INUNDATED.

Esopus Creek Overflowed Its Banks and Caused Much Damage.

The Esopus Creek overflowed its banks Saturday night, and covered a portion of the Kingston Lowlands. Those who have seen floods in this Creek say that the water raised faster from 6 to 8 o'clock than they had ever before known it to do in the same period of time. A man who stood in Voorhees' Lane, at the water's edge, says that it raised so fast he was forced to step back continually to keep from wetting his feet. It continued to rise for several hours, and then fell as rapidly as it had risen. It caused considerable damage to crops all the way from Cantine's Bridge, in the town of Marbletown, to and through the town of Ulster. Charles Merritt, of Kingston, was damaged between $800 and $900. Nine acres of rye, a large field of potatoes, corn etc., were under water, while $150 worth of manure, which had been stacked on the field, was swept away. Fences were destroyed. The creek ran over the roadway at Mutton Hollow in the town of Ulster and flooded the lower portion of several houses. Among those who had crops destroyed are John Shorter, A. S. Babcock, Michael Ripley and Clarence Schoonmaker. Three brothers named Walker, who raise fruit and vegetables along the stone road, are said to have lost everything they had planted.

IN THE LOCAL FIELD OF SPORT.

Record of Ball Players—A Series of Games to be Contested.

His average is .849 per cent.

Brouthers, of the Bostons, a native and resident of Wappingers Falls, stands at the head of the batters in the National League this season.

The Kingston Base Ball Club will play the Norwalks, of the Connecticut State League, on the Union-avenue grounds on Thursday.

A series of games will be played between members of the Hauck Gynasium Club and the Newburgh Athletic Club this summer.

NEWS FROM THE FLOODED DISTRICTS.

Lives Lost in Maryland—English Comment On the Disaster.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

ROCHESTER, June 3.—The Genesee River continues to rise at this point, although it is falling up the valley. Cellars along Front-street are flooded here, but the damage will be small. A special dispatch from Dansville says the damage there will amount to $20,000. A number of culverts, some farm stock and a great deal of produce was swept away yesterday. At Avon the damage will not amount to much. A number of fences on the flats were carried away. The River is two miles wide at that point. Usually at this time of the year it is 150 feet wide. In the Wyoming Valley the creeks fell as rapidly as they rose, and all danger is now over. Some culverts and one or two small bridges were carried away.

BUFFALO, June 3.—A special from Olean, N. Y., says all danger from the flood is past the high waters are receding. Several houses and many small buildings have been swept away or wrecked. Both bridges over the Allegheny River have been carried away. The City Water Works are still useless on account of the flood.

CARLISLE, Pa., June 3.—Later information from the surrounding country shows that the loss by the floods will be over $200,000. At William's Grove eight buildings have been swept away along the line of the Harrisburg & Potomac Railroad and for miles the roadbed and tracks have been washed away. Fifteen bridges have floated away. The large dam at Laurel gave way, carrying small buildings, bridges, fences, trees, etc., with it, inflicting a loss of $20,000 on Mullen Brothers, paper manufacturers. The Cumberland Valley Railroad Company's loss will be heavy. A number of new bridges have been washed away. As far as heard from no lives have been lost.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The railroad situation in Virginia is frightfully bad. There will probably be no trains south for several days. Numerous washouts are reported. The town of Occoquan, 16 miles below Alexandria, is from six to 10 feet under water.

Two spans of the long bridge crossing the Potomac here have been carried away by the flood.

Senator Gorman, for many years at the head of the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal Company, says the flood will undoubtedly cause the abandonment of the canal. He does not think the Directors, owing to the manner in which the Maryland Constitution is formed, can raise one-hundredth part of the money to restore the works.

BALTIMORE, June 3.—Reports of damage to country roads, culverts, bridges and houses continue to reach here. Frederick County will lose, in the destruction of bridges, $100,000, and between Knoxville and Harper's Ferry the loss will be $500,000. At Harper's Ferry the people are still encamped on the hills. The railroad bridge spanning the Shenandoah was destroyed. The railroad tracks between Weverton and Sandy Hook are badly washed away and in places covered with from two to eight feet with bowlders, earth and trees. The loss of life was as follows: Joseph Creager, of Leitersburg, drowned in Antietam Creek; George Derrick, of Trevanion Mills, drowned in Pipe Creek; Mrs. Charles McFadden, of Taneytown, drowned in the Creek near that place; William Hudson, of Orange Grove, drowned in the Patapsco; Miss Margaret Moore, of Taneytown, drowned in the creek near that place; a colored man, name not known, drowned in Wicomico County; James Lawson, of Monrovia, Frederick County, drowned in the Monocacy. Theodore Wolte, of Williamsport, drowned in the Potomac; a colored man, name unknown, of Cumberland, drowned in the Potomac.

ENGLISH COMMENT ON DISASTER.

By Cable to The Freeman.

LONDON, June 3.—The Daily News, discussing the danger of artificial lakes, says: "America, where everything is on a scale of vastness which we cannot experience, seems destined to suffer the calamities of civilization, as it exhibits its triumphs, on the most colossal scale. The sympathy of the whole civilized world will be with the people of Pennsylvania in the saddest, most striking and most overwhelming misfortune that ever befell a people of the English race." The other morning dailies refer to the disaster in a similar strain.

In a stretch of woods adjoining the pasture lot were two young men, William Rowe and Frank Delong, practicing with pistols. One of the bullets struck Keppler in the right side. He was removed to the City Hospital and the young men were arrested.

The Synagogue Sons of Israel on First-street, Jersey City, was dedicated yesterday. The congregation is composed of Polish Jews living in the lower section of the City. The ceremonies opened with a psalm chanted by the choir. Mayor Cleveland, in an appropriate address, presented the key of the building to B. Drachman, President of the society.

Hon. D. F. Davis,

ex-Governor of the State of Maine, ex-Collector of the port of Bangor, was asked to investigate the case of Reuben Severance, of Stillwater, Me. He did so, finding the following to be the facts: Fourteen years ago a tumor appeared in the groin of Severance, increasing in size until it hung nearly to the knee, weighing about seven pounds. He carried this ten years, as no physician dared cut it out, fearing a shock to the nervous system would kill the patient.

There was no digestion; ringing sounds were in the ears; dizziness, palpitation, inflammation, with pains. Patient bed-ridden and praying for relief. Began to use Brown's Sarsaparilla, and fourteen bottles scattered and entirely eradicted this tumor, and Mr. Severance is now about his business. We will find abundant proof of this and other wonderful cures on application, we will offer the grandest blood purifier ever known, Chief Justice Peters says Dr. Brown was twenty years in perfecting this grand preparation. CITY AND SUBURBAN NEWS

AND BITS OF CHAT AND GOSSIP OVERHEARD HERE TO-DAY.

Four Boys, who, it is Alleged, Destroyed Flower Beds, Arrested—Battle Between Bees—Local Branch State Charities Aid Association—Board of Health.

In all probability several relatives of the Corn family of Kingston, lost their lives in the flood which swept away Johnstown, in the State of Pennsylvania. Lewis Corn, son of the late Isidore Corn, had an uncle residing in that City, A. L. Williams, who was married, and the father of a Mrs. Charles Simons, who had three children. Charles Simons was the proprietor of a shoe store in the Grand Opera House building. Mr. Corn's brother, Aaron A. Corn, a young man 17 years old was a clerk in the store. Mr. Corn expected to leave Johnstown last Thursday. No word has been received from him, and it is feared by his parents that he may have remained there. When Aaron Corn visited his home in this City last September, he spoke of the danger which threatened Johnstown from floods. In the spring of 1888 he said the water rose so high it flooded streets and families were forced to move to the upper stories of the houses. At that time the dam at South Fork was considered dangerous, and citizens frequently talked about it.

Ex-Alderman Edward Brietenbucher is the owner of a number of hives of bees. Yesterday afternoon the bees of one hive robbed another hive of its honey. Mr. Breitenbucher said to-day: "It is an interesting sight to witness a 'rob.' It is also an unfrequent occurence. The battle is usually a long one. The stealing may be occasioned by the bees of one hive becoming lazy. Yesterday the thieves were victorious. It is a hard matter to tell which of the hives is doing the stealing. When the hive was traced I cut the combs and allowed the honey to run. That is the only method to stop a fight. The thieving bees usually direct their attention to the Queen of a hive, and when that Imperial insect is killed, the bees in her hive join the robbers, and all the honey in the hive is carried away. Such occurences are the cause of much loss to bee-keepers."

On Saturday Officer Robert Smith arrested boys named Claude Green, John Cuneo, Augustus York and Samuel Hull on the charge of removing plants and flowers from flower beds, lawns and yards of a number of Kingston residents. Choice plants were also taken from pots on piazzas. The boys confessed, but gave no reason for committing the acts. They usually went in company. Their case will be considered next Saturday.

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF EXCISE.

Commissioner Groves Refuses to Sign Licenses for Places He Considers Not Hotels.

When the Excise Commissioners of this City met in City Hall this afternoon, a large number of saloon-keepers were present. A protest asking the Commissioners to refuse a license to a saloon-keeper at "20 The Strand," was read. A communication was also received calling the attention of the Commissioners to the fact that saloons on Mill-street "keep open houses" on Sundays.

The first application for a license considered was that of one John J. Henry, against whom a protest was entered at a previous meeting by the Newark Lime & Cement Company. Commissioner Mayer stated that he had made personal inquiries regarding Henry's place and was satisfied that he was entitled to a license. The application was laid on the table.

Christian Eisenla applied for a hotel license. He was refused.

A warm discussion arose between Commissioners Mayer and Groves. Mr. Groves stated that Mr. Mayer was not sustaining a previous agreement made by him that he was in favor of restricting the number of hotels to 16 for Kingston and six for Rondout, and that only bona fide hotels should be granted licenses. Mr. Mayer said that he had agreed to reduce the number of hotel licenses to 50 per cent. less than last year. Mr. Groves stated that he had made up his mind to sign only such hotelkeepers' licenses as in his opinion were in accordance to law and justice. Mr. Mayer stated that he would sign the number he had agreed upon—50 per cent. less than last year.

Next came Walter S. Simpson. He wanted a hotel license also. He was refused. He then applied for a store license,

Thomas Rigney was the next man to ask for a hotel license. He said he had "kept a place" for many years and had all the accomodations for a hotel. He invited the Board to inspect his premises.

Other applicants for hotel licenses were refused. They, in most instances, took out ale and beer licenses. The following licenses were granted up to 4 o'clock this afternoon:

Ale and beer licenses were granted to the following:

Michael F. Larkin, P. S. Crispell, John F. Brady, A. Koons, John Motrie, Joseph Moser, Michael Flick, Peter Mooney, L. Merchant, Patrick J. Brennan, John Hughes, Sessman Newland.

PORTION OF LOWLANDS INUNDATED.

Esopus Creek Overflowed Its Banks and Caused Much Damage.

The Esopus Creek overflowed its banks Saturday night, and covered a portion of the Kingston Lowlands. Those who have seen floods in this Creek say that the water raised faster from 6 to 8 o'clock than they had ever before known it to do in the same period of time. A man who stood in Voorhees' Lane, at the water's edge, says that it raised so fast he was forced to step back continually to keep from wetting his feet. It continued to rise for several hours, and then fell as rapidly as it had risen. It caused considerable damage to crops all the way from Cantine's Bridge, in the town of Marbletown, to and through the town of Ulster. Charles Merritt, of Kingston, was damaged between $800 and $900. Nine acres of rye, a large field of potatoes, corn etc., were under water, while $150 worth of manure, which had been stacked on the field, was swept away. Fences were destroyed. The creek ran over the roadway at Mutton Hollow in the town of Ulster and flooded the lower portion of several houses. Among those who had crops destroyed are John Shorter, A. S. Babcock, Michael Ripley and Clarence Schoonmaker. Three brothers named Walker, who raise fruit and vegetables along the stone road, are said to have lost everything they had planted.

NEWS FROM THE FLOODED DISTRICTS.

Lives Lost in Maryland—English Comment On the Disaster.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

ROCHESTER, June 3.—The Genesee River continues to rise at this point, although it is falling up the valley. Cellars along Front-street are flooded here, but the damage will be small. A special dispatch from Dansville says the damage there will amount to $20,000. A number of culverts, some farm stock and a great deal of produce was swept away yesterday. At Avon the damage will not amount to much. A number of fences on the flats were carried away. The River is two miles wide at that point. Usually at this time of the year it is 150 feet wide. In the Wyoming Valley the creeks fell as rapidly as they rose, and all danger is now over. Some culverts and one or two small bridges were carried away.

BUFFALO, June 3.—A special from Olean, N. Y., says all danger from the flood is past the high waters are receding. Several houses and many small buildings have been swept away or wrecked. Both bridges over the Allegheny River have been carried away. The City Water Works are still useless on account of the flood.

CARLISLE, Pa., June 3.—Later information from the surrounding country shows that the loss by the floods will be over $200,000. At William's Grove eight buildings have been swept away along the line of the Harrisburg & Potomac Railroad and for miles the roadbed and tracks have been washed away. Fifteen bridges have floated away. The large dam at Laurel gave way, carrying small buildings, bridges, fences, trees, etc., with it, inflicting a loss of $20,000 on Mullen Brothers, paper manufacturers. The Cumberland Valley Railroad Company's loss will be heavy. A number of new bridges have been washed away. As far as heard from no lives have been lost.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The railroad situation in Virginia is frightfully bad. There will probably be no trains south for several days. Numerous washouts are reported. The town of Occoquan, 16 miles below Alexandria, is from six to 10 feet under water.

Two spans of the long bridge crossing the Potomac here have been carried away by the flood.

Senator Gorman, for many years at the head of the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal Company, says the flood will undoubtedly cause the abandonment of the canal. He does not think the Directors, owing to the manner in which the Maryland Constsitution is formed, can raise one-hundredth part of the money to restore the works.

BALTIMORE, June 3.—Reports of damage to country roads, culverts, bridges and houses continue to reach here. Frederick County will lose, in the destruction of bridges, $100,000, and between Knoxville and Harper's Ferry the loss will be $500,000. At Harper's Ferry the people are still encamped on the hills. The railroad bridge spanning the Shenandoah was destroyed. The railroad tracks between Weverton and Sandy Hook are badly washed away and in places covered with from two to eight feet with bowlders, earth and trees. The loss of life was as follows: Joseph Creager, of Leitersburg, drowned in Antietam Creek; George Derrick, of Trevanion Mills, drowned in Pipe Creek; Mrs. Charles McFadden, of Taneytown, drowned in the Creek near that place; William Hudson, of Orange Grove, drowned in the Patapsco; Miss Margaret Moore, of Taneytown, drowned in the creek near that place; a colored man, name not known, drowned in Wicomico County; James Lawson, of Monrovia, Frederick County, drowned in the Monocacy. FOR SALE—A TWO-STORY FRAME HOUSE, with basement and cellar, and good sized lot, No. 40 Hone-street. Terms Easy. Full particulars can be obtained from J. W. Wood, 40 Hone-street, Rondout, N. Y.

Hon. D. F. Davis,

Ex-Governor of the State of Maine, ex-Collector of the port of Bangor, was asked to investigate the case of Reuben Severance, of Stillwater, Me. He did so, finding the following to be the facts: Fourteen years ago a tumor appeared in the groin of Severance, increasing in size until it hung nearly to the knee, weighing about seven pounds. He carried this ten years, as no physician dared cut it out, fearing a shock to the nervous system would kill the patient.

There was no digestion; ringing sounds were in the ears; dizziness, palpitation, inflammation, with pains. Patient bed-ridden and praying for relief. Began to use Brown's Sarsaparilla, and fourteen bottles scattered and entirely eradicted this tumor, and Mr. Severance is now about his business. We will find abundant proof of this and other wonderful cures on application, we will offer the grandest blood purifier ever known. Chief Justice Peters says Dr. Brown was twenty years in perfecting this grand preparation. There is nothing in the world like

BROWN'S Sarsaparilla.
